DEMOCRATIC PARTY PROPAGANDA HIT IN CAMPAIGN ADDRESS

Declares Position On Tariff, Dry Law In Speech Here

The charge that the Hoover administration is not getting the "breaks" from the press because of misleading propaganda being disseminated by the Democratic party through the medium of a publicity bureau established at Washington, D. C., for the purpose of "smearing Hoover," was made by Roscoe C. McCulloch, Republican candidate for United States senator in an address at an afternoon Republican rally at the Opera House Tuesday.

An investigation revealed the real purpose of the bureau is to obscure every Hoover virtue and achievement and "put the President in bad with the American people," McCulloch charged, declaring the Democrats hope to destroy public confidence in the present administration.

Characterizing the so-called propaganda campaign as a "nefarious scheme" to minimize every effort of the administration designed for the welfare of the country, the candidate asserted his conviction that "no fair-minded person would hardly blame the prolonged drought, the unemployment situation and the stock market crash upon Herbert Hoover, these being factors which are beyond human control."

Declaring himself as a staunch advocate of protective tariff, bitter opponent of unrestricted immigration and enthusiastically in favor of a steady increase in the American standard of living, McCulloch also expressed himself as an ardent dry as opposed to his Democratic opponent, Robert J. Bulkley, whom he assailed for his alleged attempt to win the election on only one issue—repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Discussing prosperity, the speaker said "our standard of living has been made high by the operation fundamentally of two great principles, first the restriction of immigration, and second, the operation of the protective tariff, scientifically applied.

"My opponent, on the other hand," the candidate declared, "stands for the open door. I am speaking of his voting record—he voted against bars restricting immigration, permitting the hoard from foreign countries to come in; he voted against world trade; and he voted against all restrictive immigration legislation. That is his record. I am proud of my record."

Elaborating on the tariff issue, Senator McCulloch said that this is a readjustment period which had to follow the war and that sensible people will recognize true conditions and will not be misled by propaganda.

"Is the protective principle in danger? Unless the people are aroused, unless they are able to see the insidious purposes back of the propaganda of the internationalists, that great principle is in danger of being sacrificed on the altar of greed and selfishness."

MARQUIS WILL NOT OPPOSE DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 22.—Indications were today that Gloria Swanson's return to single life again will be accomplished with dispatch when the Marquis Henri De La Falaise De La Coudey indicated he will not contest his wife's divorce action.

Miss Swanson's complaint charged that the marquis deserted her "wilfully and maliciously." The entire complaint was contained in a single, curt paragraph. The motion picture actress and her husband parted more than a year ago, announcing that they were still the best of friends. Miss Swanson intimated that her devotion to her screen career was foremost.

"This is the film actress' third divorce."

ESCAPED PRISONER RETURNED TO CELL

MARYSVILLE, O., Oct. 22.—Jack Huff, 29, of Marietta, who escaped from the Union County jail here last Thursday, was back in his cell today following his arrest in Marietta yesterday.

He was returned here Tuesday night by Sheriff J. B. Lingrel, who said that the prisoner will be placed in solitary confinement for a few weeks. Huff is charged with automobile theft.

MORAN IS CAUGHT

His arrest in a roadhouse, near Waukegan, Ill., has ended the four-month search for George (Bugs) Moran, Chicago gangster and rival of Al Capone. Moran has been missing from Chicago since shortly before the murder of Alfred Lingle, newspaper reporter. He is one of the twenty-eight men listed as "public enemies" in Chicago. After Moran's arrest he was held, in Waukegan, under $50,000 bond, on a vagrancy charge.

CURRENT CAMPAIGN CHEAPEST; SEARCH FOR FRIENDS FAILURE

Little Money Being Spent
As Little Is Contributed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—The current campaign for control of congress, now raging from Boston to Butte, has been described as the hottest in a quarter of a century. It might also properly be described as the cheapest in that time.

The check collectors of both parties, returning empty-handed and somewhat rueful from beating the highways and the byways in quest of funds, have reported that never have times been so hard on their business.

The Republican national committee, which never has had much difficulty in raising whatever it needs in campaign years, reported to the clerk of the house today expenditures of only little more than a million dollars, $573,173 to be exact.

Half a million dollars may sound like a lot of money, but in comparison with other years it sounds like small change. Of course, off-year campaigns are enormously cheaper than the campaigns of presidential years, but even so a mere half million dollars put up for so hectic a fight as this 1930 battle is a very modest sum.

The Democratic national committee has yet to report its expenditures. However, the Democratic senatorial committee, which is directing a dozen sanguinary fights in as many states, has reported the expenditure of only $22,085, which many old timers consider hardly enough for a stiff contest in one of the smaller states. That $22,085 has been distributed in ten states.

The big expenditures, if any, are being made by the individual candidates and not by the national party committees.

The Republican national committee report, which usually brings with contributions from one $10,000 to $25,000 class, only presents two in the former class William Wrigley of Chicago, and Julius Forstmann of Passaic, N. J.

Dwight W. Morrow, Republican senatorial candidate in New Jersey, is down for $5,000, as is his wife, and T. M. Girdler of Cleveland contributed a like amount.

The Democratic senatorial committee's report showed it to be an almost one man supported institution. Of its $22,085, the sum of $20,000 was contributed by Bernard M. Baruch, New York capitalist. The Democratic national committee's report when issued, will show John J. Raskob as the chief "angel" of its efforts.

CLEVELAND PAPER BOY DISAPPEARS

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 22.—Fear was expressed here today for the safety of William Hart, a 13-year-old newsboy, as police began a search for the boy who has been reported missing from his home since early yesterday.

Reports of the assault and robbery of another 13-year-old newsboy and a collector for a newspaper yesterday in the vicinity where young Hart sold papers, lent emphasis to the belief of police that the lad had met with violence at the hands of assailants.

MINE DISASTER TOLL MOUNTS; EXPLOSION SOURCE IS MYSTERY

FEDERAL RELIEF IS STARTED; APPOINT JOB ADMINISTRATOR

Survey Being Made In Ohio; Food Is Distributed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—With little prospect for immediate concrete steps by the federal government to relieve the unemployment situation, machinery was put in motion today by the President's cabinet committee to lend what comfort it could, and to coordinate those agencies, state and industrial, which gave promise of ultimate remedy.

The big problem confronting the government was that of finding jobs for the jobless over the winter, with the hope that the depression, on which is placed the blame for the present crisis will correct itself by spring.

Col. Arthur Woods of New York, the man who directed the job finding for war veterans, and later undertook to meet the unemployment situation in 1922, reached the capital today to take over similar work for Mr. Hoover. He was pressed into service during yesterday's cabinet session.

He conferred with the President and Secretary of Commerce Lamont, chairman of the President's unemployment committee. Col. Woods will act as "unemployment administrator," and the Lamont committee will serve in an advisory capacity.

Woods' job will be to organize the employment campaign and seek the co-operation of state and local government and industry, and welfare organizations to provide jobs for some three and a half million now out of work.

Officials admitted prospects of the government creating new jobs at once was slight, as congress must first cut the red tape entangling the federal construction projects, and Congress meets in December.

The President, however, will ask congress to remove many of the restrictions on appropriations and make them immediately available.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Oct. 22.—While state authorities pressed an investigation into reported conditions of stress, occasioned by lack of employment, in southeastern Ohio and the Hocking Valley mining districts, a local committee began functioning today for the distribution of food and clothing to needy school children.

An unusual number of requests, especially for clothing, have been received by school officials in Belmont County, according to George M. Pogue, superintendent of the county schools, who has been placed in charge of the local relief committee.

A probe of reported destitute conditions in Belmont County was conducted today by Assistant Adjutant General Wade C. Christy, who was appointed to get firsthand information by Adjutant General Arthur Reynolds following a conference with Governor Myers Y. Cooper and Reynolds Monday.

STATE W. C. T. U. TO OPPOSE ALL WETS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Oct. 22.—The battle of members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Ohio for the retention of prohibition was renewed here today, following the passage of a resolution at a convention session yesterday to fight the election of all wet candidates for political offices.

The recommendation for community groups to hold dry parades and meetings in every section of the state in order to defeat the wet candidates, was accepted at the first general session of the convention after a ringing address by Mrs. Florence B. Richard, state president of the W. C. T. U., urging the members to stand by the eighteenth amendment.

Mrs. Richard called upon the members to fight the candidacy of Robert J. Bulkley, Democratic nominee for the United States senate, who advocates the repeal of the prohibition amendment.

Recover 150 Bodies; Stores Of Dynamite Not Touched

ALSDORF, Germany, Oct. 22.—Complete mystery today shrouded the cause of the Anna Coal Mine disaster here, where a terrific detonation yesterday spread death and ruin above and below ground.

Rescue workers who labored in shifts to extract the victims from the collapsed shafts and gangways at depths ranging from 800 to 1,550 feet, reported they found the stores of dynamite wholly undisturbed. This discovery entirely upset the calculations of mine officials, who previously were convinced that the blasts resulted from ignition of underground stores of explosives.

An explosion of coal gas in the lower channels was held impossible, further mystifying investigators.

Meanwhile the death toll climbed hourly. Before noon the rescue squads had recovered 150 bodies, with ninety-eight miners and mine employees in the hospital more or less seriously injured.

Rescuers, entering from neighboring mines and pushing slowly through the shambles to the main shaft below, reached two collapsed galleries and found forty-one and fifty-one bodies respectively.

From another gallery, buried under tons of debris, they dragged out fifty more miners who apparently were killed shortly after the first blast.

TRANSFER OF STATE FUNDS SANCTIONED BY COURT VERDICT

Denies Injunction;
Claims Ohio Laws
Permit Action

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—Court sanction had been given today to the recent action of the state emergency board which made a temporary transfer of $1,300,000 from the state soldiers' bonus fund to the repair fund of the state highway department.

The transfer was made, in view of a temporary depletion of the repair fund, for the purpose of providing employment for needy farmers and other rural residents in drought-stricken communities on highway improvement work.

Common Pleas Judge Charles A. Leach here late Tuesday held that the emergency board's action is legal. Judge Leach, accordingly, rejected the application of Attorney W. S. Pealer, Columbus, for an injunction preventing transfer of the money. Pealer, who was a clerk in the governor's office under former Governor James M. Cox, charged that use of the funds by the highway department was prohibited by state law.

Ohio Laws, Judge Leach ruled, permit this transfer. He held, also, that these statutes conform with the state constitution.

SECRETARY OF HERO FUND SUMMONED

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 22.—Frank M. Wilmut, 58, secretary and manager of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission and a close personal friend of the late Andrew Carnegie, died suddenly at his home here today.

Wilmut was born and educated in Lambertville, N. J. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Maud Gallagher Wilmut; his mother, Mrs. W. H. Wilmut, of Lambertville; a sister, Mrs. Vincent Bradley, of Trenton, N. J., and three brothers, W. H. Wilmut, Jr., R. T. Wilmut of Casey, Ill., and Donovan Wilmut of Cleveland. Interment will be at Lambertville.

FESS COMING HOME
WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Senator Simeon Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, announced today he will leave the capital on Thursday for Ohio to spend the balance of the time before election in campaigning for the Republican ticket there.

KING WINTER DESCENDS ON NORTHERN STATES

Shifting winds bringing snow and cold from the northwest have caused scenes like this in most of the northern states from the Rockies to the eastern seaboard—winter weather after an abnormally warm autumn. These photos show one of the districts hardest hit, western New York, where the snow fall four feet on the level in towns and cities outside of Buffalo. Top photo shows a scene along the Hamburg-Buffalo road on Lake Erie, and below, a line of cars jammed tight in both directions waiting aid as the blizzard subsided.

GIRL CONFESSES GANG ASSOCIATION

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 22.—Zelma Jones, 21, daughter of an Olive Hill, Ky., school teacher has confessed, police said today, that she has been associated with the notorious Bowman-Bogess bandit gang which has been terrorizing the tri-state region for several months.

The girl denied, however, that she had taken part in the gang's numerous raids, according to police. Miss Jones said that another girl, Florence Gages, 21, also lived in the band's camp.

Efforts to apprehend the leaders of the bandit hand have been renewed following a raid at West Union, O., last Monday night.

Members of the Bowman clique were believed to have been the robbers who obtained $300 in the robbery.

An agreement was made late Tuesday by which Rush's divorced wife, Mrs. Ruby Rush, New York actress, and Frank A. Hunter, attorney were named administrators of the $50,000 estate.

Mrs. Rush had won her fight in probate court earlier in the day when Judge Homer Z. Bostwick upheld Mrs. Rush's appointment as executrix. The will, which she said Rush gave her after they were divorced several years ago, named her as sole beneficiary.

The dead inventor's father, Andreas Roesch, of Columbus, and two brothers, Alphonse Roesch, of Columbus and Andre Roesch, of California, have objected to the appointment of Mrs. Rush. Their attorneys announced that a suit contesting the will is to be filed within a day or so.

Rush was found dead in his East Side home October 6. No verdict has yet been returned by Coroner Joseph A. Murphy, but it was verbally stated by authorities that the inventor committed suicide.

SCIENTISTS PHOTOGRAPH SUN ECLIPSE; THEORIES PROVEN

NIAFOU (TIN CAN) ISLAND, SOUTH SEAS, Oct. 22.—Work of dismantling two huge cameras and packing delicate instruments was underway here today following the eclipse of the sun here yesterday. Ideal weather conditions prevailed during the celestial phenomenon and scientists were able to take many photographs of the eclipse and to make observations, which it is expected will take weeks to check and re-check.

Duration of the total eclipse was ninety-three and one-half seconds. The theory that an eclipse of the sun interferes with the functioning of radio was borne out by events yesterday. It was hours after the eclipse before radio messages could be sent telling of the success of the expedition, because of interference in the air.

Commander C. H. J. Keppler, executive head of the United States Naval Observatory, asserted he believed the objective of the scientists had been achieved, and that successful observations and photographs had been made.

Scientists were interested in the eclipse as a means of further testing the Einstein theory of relativity, and of studying the structure of atoms in the sun's flaming atmosphere.

BANDITS GET $65,000 IN JEWELRY IN ROBBERY

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Guns flashed and women clad in evening clothes screamed as four gunmen held up two wealthy couples on Chicago's gold coast today and robbed them of jewelry valued at $65,000.

The victims, returning in a taxicab from a downtown hotel, were Mr. and Mrs. George E. Crandell and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph N. Gardner. Crandell is a retired vice president of Montgomery Ward and Co., and Gardner is a wealthy broker.

RUSH WILL CONTEST SEEN; COMPROMISE ON ADMINISTRATORS

Divorced Wife Wins Point; Attempt To Break Will

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—The validity of the will of the late Albert Rush, Columbus inventor, was expected to be contested by legal action today following two important developments of a court battle here yesterday.

An agreement was made late Tuesday by which Rush's divorced wife, Mrs. Ruby Rush, New York actress, and Frank A. Hunter, attorney were named administrators of the $50,000 estate.

Mrs. Rush had won her fight in probate court earlier in the day when Judge Homer Z. Bostwick upheld Mrs. Rush's appointment as executrix. The will, which she said Rush gave her after they were divorced several years ago, named her as sole beneficiary.

The dead inventor's father, Andreas Roesch, of Columbus, and two brothers, Alphonse Roesch, of Columbus and Andre Roesch, of California, have objected to the appointment of Mrs. Rush. Their attorneys announced that a suit contesting the will is to be filed within a day or so.

Rush was found dead in his East Side home October 6. No verdict has yet been returned by Coroner Joseph A. Murphy, but it was verbally stated by authorities that the inventor committed suicide.

The board also released $150,000 of state funds for additions to the botany and zoology building on the Ohio State University campus. It is planned to build a third story to the structure which was erected fifteen years ago. The university was further authorized to spend $25,000 for additional equipment in this building and to spend an additional $25,000 for new windows in Campbell Hall.

The Longview State Hospital, Cincinnati, was authorized to spend $12,000 in connection with the construction of a tubercular ward. The board previously had authorized expenditure of $39,200 for this purpose.

Purchase of machinery to equip the machine, woodworking, sheet metal and printing shops in the new vocational building at the O. S. and S. O. Home was authorized by the board of trustees of the institution at its monthly meeting here over last week-end.

LOOT IS RECOVERED BY POLICE PROBING LONG THEFT RECORD

Accused Men Served
Time; Many Cases
Are Confessed

Nineteen burglaries, police believe, may have been cleared up with the arrest of Irvin T. Shoemaker, 26, and Willard Williams, 24.

Both men have criminal records, Police Chief O. H. Cornwell has discovered.

Shoemaker was sentenced to the Mansfield state reformatory in 1926, was paroled in 1928 and in December, 1928, under the alias of Richard Johnson, was sentenced to Ohio penitentiary from Springfield on a grand larceny charge. He served sixteen months and was among the prisoners transferred to the London prison farm following the penitentiary fire last Easter.

Shoemaker was paroled last May 26 and the first of a series of burglaries in Xenia and vicinity was reported last June 7 when the home of Clarence Jeffries, N. West St., was robbed.

Shoemaker confessed to a number of robberies and has implicated Williams as his accomplice in one recent attempted robbery—that of the Stiles Coal Co. office in which nothing was stolen.

Burnt matches were found by police at the scene of all of the burglaries, Shoemaker explaining that he used matches instead of a flashlight.

Williams was apprehended Monday night by two Dayton detectives and admitted serving fourteen months in the Mansfield reformatory on a forgery charge, police say.

No charges have been placed against either man as Chief Cornwell and Patrolman Ed Craig have been making an exhaustive search of pawnshops in Dayton and other cities in an effort to identify and recover as much as possible of stolen loot.

Shoemaker has refused to divulge the places where he disposed of property he stole but police are making some headway in recovering the loot. A typewriter taken from the Yellow Springs Lumber Co. office, a shot gun stolen from the home of Robert Haws, N. Detroit St., and two suits of clothes and a pair of gloves, comprising part of the loot obtained when the Ludlow Road home of Tommy I. Mason was ransacked, have been recovered. Mason's property was traced to a Dayton pawnshop Tuesday by Captain Charles E. Thompson and Patrolman Craig.

The men are believed to have become acquainted while prisoners at the Mansfield reformatory. Both are former Xenians.

QUIZ STEP-MOTHER IN CHILD'S MURDER IN DENVER MYSTERY

Woman Offers No Clues
In Death; Plot Indicated

DENVER, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, 30, step-mother of Leona O'Loughlin, 10-year old Denver girl whose body was discovered in a park late Friday, had today failed to give Denver police any information concerning the slayer of the child.

Subjected to a severe grilling since early Sunday afternoon, Mrs. O'Loughlin insists she knows nothing about the crime. The questioning of Mrs. O'Loughlin reached a dramatic climax Tuesday when District Attorney Earl Wettengel and Captain of Detectives A. T. Clarke took her to a mortuary where the body of the slain girl was being prepared for burial.

In the presence of the dead child question after question was fired at the pretty red-haired step-mother. Mrs. O'Loughlin insisted she knew nothing of the murder. For the most part she remained calm.

Clues indicating a wide-spread plot to do away with members of the O'Loughlin family through the use of ground glass poison have been brought to light by detectives.

SENTENCE AUTOIST TO TWO YEARS IN PEN

LIMA, O., Oct. 22.—A motion for a new trial for Anthony Weber, convicted of manslaughter, was overruled today by Judge W. T. Copeland of common pleas court here, and Weber was sentenced to serve a minimum of two years in Ohio Penitentiary.

Weber was convicted of the charge in connection with the death of Monveen Stevely, 18 months old, who was killed when she was struck by Weber's automobile last August 27. His case was tried twice, the jury disagreeing the first time.

GIRL CONFESSES GANG ASSOCIATION

PORTSMOUTH, O., Oct. 22.—Zelma Jones, 21, daughter of an Olive Hill, Ky., school teacher has confessed, police said today, that she has been associated with the notorious Bowman-Boggs bandit gang which has been terrorizing the tri-state region for several months.

The girl denied, however, that she had taken part in the gang's numerous raids, according to police. Miss Jones said that another girl, Florence Gages, 21, also lived at the band's camp.

Efforts to apprehend the leaders of the bandit band have been renewed following a raid at West Union, O., last Monday night.

Members of the Bowman clique were believed to have been the robbers who obtained $300 in the robbery.

POLICE SERGEANTS TRAPPED IN BRIBE

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Seized in a trap set by Police Commissioner John H. Alecock, Police Sergeants John McCarthy and Ernest Dallegre were under arrest today charged with attempting to extort $25,000 from a drug store proprietor.

Both officers were suspended by the police commissioner last night pending criminal action which Commissioner Alecock said will be pressed immediately.

According to the story told by Joseph Mason, owner of the drug store, the two officers threatened to prosecute him as a bomb plotter unless they were paid $25,000. Mason protested at the sum and finally they agreed on a $5,000 demand. The druggist told the commissioner, Police arrested Dallegre when he called at the drug store for a package of marked small bills and paper cuttings.

SCIENTISTS PHOTOGRAPH SUN ECLIPSE; THEORIES PROVEN

NIAFOU (TIN CAN) ISLAND, SOUTH SEAS, Oct. 22.—Work of dismantling two huge cameras and packing delicate instruments was underway here today following the eclipse of the sun here yesterday.

Ideal weather conditions prevailed during the celestial phenomenon and scientists were able to take many photographs of the eclipse and to make observations, which it is expected will take weeks to check and re-check.

BANDITS GET $65,000 IN JEWELRY IN ROBBERY

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Guns flashed and women clad in evening clothes screamed as four gunmen held up two wealthy couples on Chicago's gold coast today and robbed them of jewelry valued at $65,000.

The victims, returning in a taxi cab from a downtown hotel, were Mr. and Mrs. George E. Crandell and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph N. Gardner. Crandell is a retired vice president of Montgomery Ward and Co., and Gardner is a wealthy broker.

Emerging from the cab at a fashionable apartment house on the gold coast the two couples were confronted by three bandits, all brandishing revolvers.

One gunman guarded the men while the other two forced the women back into the cab at the points of their revolvers.

"Give us your jewelry and you won't be killed," they commanded. Before the women could obey the robbers began pulling the rings from their fingers.

RUSH WILL CONTEST SEEN; COMPROMISE ON ADMINISTRATORS

Divorced Wife Wins
Point; Attempt To Break Will

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 22.—The validity of the will of the late Albert Rush, Columbus inventor, was expected to be contested by legal action today following two important developments of a court battle here yesterday.

An agreement was made late Tuesday by which Rush's divorced wife, Mrs. Ruby Rush, New York actress, and Frank A. Hunter, attorney, were named administrators of the $50,000 estate.

Mrs. Rush had won her fight in probate court earlier in the day when Judge Homer Z. Bostwick upheld Mrs. Rush's appointment as executrix. The will, which she said Rush gave her after they were divorced several years ago, named her as sole beneficiary.

The dead inventor's father, Andreas Roesch, of Columbus, and two brothers, Alphonse Roesch, of Columbus and Andre Roesch, of California, have objected to the appointment of Mrs. Rush. Their attorneys announced that a suit contesting the will is to be filed within a day or so.

Rush was found dead in his East Side home October 6. No verdict has yet been returned by Coroner Joseph A. Murphy, but it was verbally stated by authorities that the inventor committed suicide.

LOOT IS RECOVERED BY POLICE PROBING LONG THEFT RECORD

Accused Men Served
Time; Many Cases
Are Confessed

Nineteen burglaries, police believe, may have been cleared up with the arrest of Irvin T. Shoemaker, 26, and Willard Williams, 24.

Both men have criminal records, Police Chief O. H. Cornwell has discovered.

Shoemaker was sentenced to the Mansfield state reformatory in 1926, was paroled in 1928 and in December, 1928, under the alias of Richard Johnson, was sentenced to Ohio penitentiary from Springfield on a grand larceny charge. He served sixteen months and was among the prisoners transferred to the London prison farm following the penitentiary fire last Easter.

Shoemaker was paroled last May 26 and the first of a series of burglaries in Xenia and vicinity was reported last June 7 when the home of Clarence Jeffries, N. West St., was robbed.

Shoemaker has confessed to a number of robberies and has implicated Williams as his accomplice in one recent attempted robbery—that of the Stiles Coal Co. office in which nothing was stolen.

Burnt matches were found by police at the scene of all of the burglaries, Shoemaker explaining that he used matches instead of a flashlight.

Williams was apprehended Monday night by two Dayton detectives and admitted serving fourteen months in the Mansfield reformatory on a larceny charge, police say.

No charges have been placed against either man as Chief Cornwell and Patrolman Ed Craig have been making an exhaustive search of pawnshops in Dayton and other cities in an effort to identify and recover as much as possible of stolen loot.

Shoemaker has refused to divulge the places where he disposed of property he stole but police are making some headway in recovering articles. A typewriter taken from the Yellow Springs Lumber Co. office, a shot gun stolen from the home of Robert Hays, N. Detroit St., and two suits of clothes and a pair of gloves, comprising part of the loot obtained when the Ludlow Road home of Tommy I. Mason was ransacked, have been recovered. Mason's property was traced to a Dayton pawnshop Tuesday by Captain Charles Thompson and Patrolman Craig.

The men are believed to have become acquainted while prisoners at the Mansfield reformatory. Both are former Xenians.

QUIZ STEP-MOTHER IN CHILD'S MURDER IN DENVER MYSTERY

Woman Offers No Clues
In Death; Plot In dicated

DENVER, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, 39, step-mother of Leona O'Loughlin, 10-year old Denver girl whose body was discovered in a park late Friday, had today failed to give Denver police any information concerning the slayer of the child.

Subjected to a severe grilling since early Sunday afternoon, Mrs. O'Loughlin insists she knows nothing about the crime. The questioning of Mrs. O'Loughlin reached a dramatic climax Tuesday when District Attorney Earl Wettengel and Captain of Detectives A. T. Clarke took her to a mortuary where the body of the slain girl was being prepared for burial.

In the presence of the dead child, question after question was fired at the pretty red-haired step-mother. Mrs. O'Loughlin insisted she knew nothing of the murder. For the most part she remained calm.

Clues indicating a wide-spread plot to do away with members of the O'Loughlin family through the use of ground glass poison have been brought to light by detectives.

SENTENCE AUTOIST TO TWO YEARS IN PEN

LIMA, O., Oct. 22.—A motion for a new trial for Anthony Weber, convicted of manslaughter, was overruled today by Judge W. T. Copeland of common pleas court here, and Weber was sentenced to serve a minimum of two years in Ohio penitentiary.

Weber was convicted of the charge in connection with the death of Myron Stevens, 18 months old, who was killed when she was struck by Weber's automobile last August 27. His case was tried twice, the jury disagreeing the first time.

WHY are Camels welcomed with cheers in any company—a twosome or a crowd? Because they're mild—not flat or tasteless but naturally mild. They have the marvelous aroma that only choice tobaccos, mellowed by golden sunshine, then expertly cured and superbly blended, can give a cigarette. There's nothing artificial about this delightful fragrance. No doctoring, no over-processing can produce it. Camel's refreshing mildness is there from the start.

Swing with the crowd to Camels. Learn the happy difference between true mildness and insipid flatness. Smoke without fear of throat-discomfort or after-taste—just for pleasure!

CHILD SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO WEDNESDAY

Albert Terrell, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore C. Terrell, 134 Center St., was rushed to Espey Hospital with serious injuries suffered when he was struck by an auto driven by W. H. Strain, Hillsboro, on W. Main St., at 11:30 o'clock, Wednesday.

The child, an X-ray picture disclosed, sustained a skull fracture and other severe head injuries the extent of which has not been definitely determined. He was rendered unconscious and his condition is pronounced as critical.

Terrell, a pupil in the first grade at the McKinley school, attempted to cross to the south side of W. Main St. in front of the Xenia Farmers Exchange Co., witnesses told Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, that he darted directly in front of the machine driven by Strain. The car was traveling west at a moderate rate of speed, it was said.

Strain placed the unconscious boy in his auto and rushed him to the hospital. He was exonerated of blame for the accident and was not held.

The boy was believed to have been on his way home as school had been dismissed for the morning five minutes before. The youth's father is employed as core-maker at the Xenia Foundry and Machine Co.

UNIVERSITY WOULD MORTGAGE REALTY; OTHER COURT NEWS

The University of Dayton, Society of Mary, Province of Cincinnati, owner of 115.40 acres of land in Beaver Creek Twp. on which is situated the Mount St. John Normal School, a religious institution, has filed an application in Common Pleas Court seeking authority to mortgage the property for the purpose of refinancing its indebtedness and obtaining funds for further improvements not to exceed $300,000 on various properties owned in Montgomery County, New York state, Washington, D. C., California and Hawaii.

Hearing on the application was assigned for Wednesday. The Greene County property is divided into three parcels and the application points out that it is desired to issue first mortgage bonds or notes and create a mortgage deed of trust conveying the property in this county to some trust company to secure payment of such bonds and notes as may be issued from time to time.

The Dayton law firm of Murphy and Murphy represents the petitioner.

ATTACHMENT SOUGHT
Suit to recover $632.83 and for attachment has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Flora Hauck as an individual and as administratrix of the estate of Emil Hauck, deceased, against Schiering.

The plaintiff, claiming that as an individual, she owns a one-half interest in a 630-acre farm situated on the Federal Pike near Gladstone in Ross Twp., charges the defendant, who has been a tenant on the farm since last April 1, harvested crops of wheat and rye, sold the grain and converted the entire proceeds to his own use. The plaintiff seeks to recover a one-half interest in the grain, Marshall and Marshall are attorneys for the plaintiff.

WINS JUDGMENT

The Bowersville Bank, Bowersville, has recovered a cognovit note judgment for $18.48 against C. S. Cummings in Common Pleas Court.

BOY SCOUT Activities

Paul McFarland, scoutmaster of Troop No. 43, Boy Scouts of America, is announcing that the troop will hold a Halloween party at the Scout cabin next Monday evening, instead of Tuesday evening as previously announced. All Scouts of Troop No. 43 are urged to be present as a good time has been planned and refreshments will be served.

TO CONFER DEGREE

A special convocation of Xenia Chapter, No. 36, R. A. M., will be held at the Masonic Temple at 7 o'clock Thursday night for the purpose of conferring the mark and past master's degree, according to W. C. Downes, high priest, who urges a full attendance.

PATTERSONS BACK FROM EUROPE TRIP

Dr. and Mrs. Austin Patterson, N. King St., arrived home Tuesday evening after spending several weeks in Europe, where Dr. Patterson attended the meeting of the International Union of Chemists at Liege, Belgium. Dr. Patterson, who is professor of chemistry at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, was a delegate to the Liege meeting from the national research council of the National Academy of Science.

After leaving Liege Dr. and Mrs. Patterson went on to Heidelberg and Munich, Germany, where Dr. Patterson engaged Paul Rothmund to come to Antioch to carry on special research work. Dr. and Mrs. Patterson visited in France and England before returning home. Miss Janet Scott, who has been Dr. Patterson's assistant at Antioch, joined them in Liege and spent the remainder of the time with them.

DR. JOHN ROMSPERT CALLED BY DEATH

Funeral services for Dr. John Allen Romsper, 72, former superintendent of the Dayton State Hospital, were held at his home on the Shakerock Pike, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and burial was made in Woodland cemetery, Dayton. His death occurred Monday morning.

He was born in Greene County in Beaver Creek Twp., June 5, 1858, and served as head of the Dayton hospital for two years. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Gertrude Romsper and two children, Richard G. Dayton and Mrs. C. Beatrice Mohr, Cincinnati.

DEMAND RANSOM FOR PRIESTS AND NUNS

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Ransom of 10,000,000 Chinese dollars (about $5,000,000) is being demanded by Chinese Communist bands for the release of seventeen Catholic priests and nuns captured during the sacking of Kianfu, it was learned here today.

The kidnaped priests and nuns are French, Italian and Filipino.

MANY ATTEND RALLY AND HOME COMING

One hundred and fifty persons attended the Rally Day and home coming services Sunday at the Old Town M. E. Church. The seventy-fifth anniversary of the building of the church was also celebrated at the services.

The regular Sunday School and church services were held in the morning and a basket dinner was served at noon. The afternoon program consisted of special music.

sic by the members of the Old Town Church and the Emory Chapel M. E. Church. An illustrated lecture on the Passion Play at Oberammergau was given by the Rev. T. Wallace Grose, of Springfield. The remainder of the afternoon's program consisted of reminiscences given by former members of the congregation.

Notice
Mr. Henry Bagley, well known Greene County insurance man of Osborn, desires it known that he has no intention of removing his family and residence to Dayton. He and Mrs. Bagley and family are too appreciative of the hundreds of friends in Greene County who have been so loyal during the past twelve years for such a move to be considered. To be a citizen of Greene County is to enjoy a privilege, indeed.

Why are Camels welcomed with cheers in any company—a twosome or a crowd? Because they're mild—not flat or tasteless but naturally mild. They have the marvelous aroma that only choice tobaccos, mellowed by golden sunshine, then expertly cured and superbly blended, can give a cigarette. There's nothing artificial about this delightful fragrance. No doctoring, no over-processing can produce it. Camel's refreshing mildness is there from the start.

Swing with the crowd to Camels. Learn the happy difference between true mildness and insipid flatness. Smoke without fear of throat-discomfort or after-taste—just for pleasure!

The undersigned has been in the shoe business in Xenia for the past twentyone years and has always had the reputation of selling high grade footwear for men, women and children. My first store was just across the street from my present location.

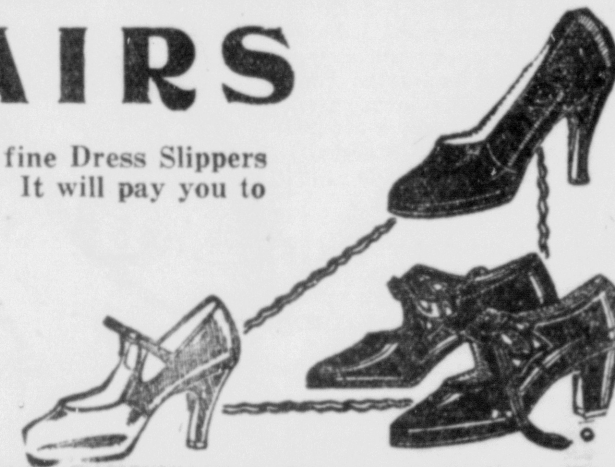

Seventeen years ago I moved to 10 S. Detroit St. and for many years did business as the Moser Shoe Store. Four years ago that store was reorganized by Mr. G. R. Hulsar and myself as the Arrow Shoe Store, as I intended to retire from active participation in the business. After a time Mr. Hulsar entered another business again leaving me sole owner of the store. About a year ago the S. S. Kresge Co. leased this room and I must vacate at once, as they will add a dollar unit to their present store. The only thing left for me to do is close out the entire stock and fixtures.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

JESUS CALLS SINNERS—Jesus saith unto them, They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.—Mark 2:17.

A BAD BREAK

The widespread strike of German metal workers comes at a particularly embarrassing moment for the German government. Chancellor Brüning must have at least the friendly neutrality of the Social Democrats if his cabinet is to stand off the onslaughts of the extremist wings in the reichstag. The metal workers have walked out because the government approved a reduction of from six to eight per cent in their wages ordered by an arbitration board. They have thus made it necessary for the socialist party in the reichstag to choose between supporting the government and the wage reduction; and standing by the wage-earners, who represent the bulk of its membership. Obviously that is a hard choice to make.

A few days ago the Social Democrats held a huge demonstration in Berlin and warned Adolf Hitler that if he did not watch his step he would find thousands of disciplined workers' fists under his nose. That was a hopeful gesture. The strike in the metal industry now throws the future course of the Social Democrats again into the lap of the gods. As they have the largest vote in the reichstag, what they do or omit to do is of tremendous importance to the government. The fact that they comprise in their rank and file a large section of the soberest and most industrious element in Germany, which stands most to lose from domestic disorder or foreign complications, affords the best ground for expecting that if it comes to a showdown between the moderates and the extremists they will take their stand with the former, wage cut to the contrary notwithstanding.

PARTIAL CENSUS

The national industrial conference board suggests, with considerable plausibility, that it would be advantageous to take at least a partial census of the country midway between each two constitutionally obligatory decennial enumerations.

As it is, we go from one census year to another basing birth and death rates and other important computations on the more or less accurate estimates of population made annually by the census bureau. Sometimes a state or city wakes up on the morning after the census has been taken to find that it has "lost" population when actually it hasn't suffered any such calamity. The appearance of loss is due to the fact that the estimated figure for the previous year was too high. The possibility of costly errors in basing vital statistics for nine years out of every decade on such estimates is apparent.

ULTRA OPTIMISTIC

The Milwaukee ex-brewers are ultra optimistic if they are expecting a modification of the Eighteenth amendment within a year, and are getting ready to resume business on the strength of such an expectation. Even if the country were in an overwhelmingly favorable state of mind, which it isn't, the mechanics of a modification would take longer than twelve months. Meanwhile, unseemly eagerness on the part of former brewers is likely to put a crimp in their prospects. If this country modifies the Eighteenth amendment, it will not do so for the purpose of accommodating those who want to brew or distill, but to promote a temperance movement that will be on a practical basis.

The San Francisco Chronicle insists that city people are the best walkers. They certainly have to be the fastest, if they want to keep on being walkers.

HUMBLE CONFESSION

I swore I'd never own a radio. I sneered at people who did. I grunted when they talked about all the enjoyment they got out of their radio. I told them things. I said there were so many other things to be done in the world that it was nonsense for any half-way intelligent human being to spend even the smallest part of his time in front of a radio.

Life was more interesting than a radio. Reading a book was more interesting. Actually getting out and going to a concert was more interesting than listening to a thin, reedy broadcast of a concert. A radio was second hand amusement. I told them a lot of other things, too. . . . In fact, I think I made it quite clear to all my friends that I didn't want a radio—and didn't have any more use for one than I have for a machine gun—and that I'd never have one of the things in the house.

And then somehow I got a radio. I was sort of led into it. I didn't mean to get it, but I did. It came in the front door and sat down in a corner, where the phonograph used to be—the phonograph is sulking in another room now—and conquered ME. Made me realize all that I've been missing. Made me see that I've been missing Life itself.

I'd thought I was free from the need of a radio. It taught me I wasn't free at all, but chained to the past. I was an ignorant slave.

I thought I had enough, the radio showed me how little I had.

I thought I was modern. I wasn't.

I thought I was living in the twentieth century. I wasn't; I was living in the dull nineties.

Suddenly I discovered, through the radio, that a human being cannot reject any part of Life without losing by it. Trash, nonsense, pomposity, triviality, commonplace, absurdity—all these come through the air and into your room with that radio. But truth, strength, laughter, tears, melody, inspiration, splendor and beauty come, too. A twist of the wrist—and the trash is silenced. Another twist—and your home is filled with glory. The challenge is there and the human spirit must meet that challenge. It must have strength enough to reject what it does not need and claim with joy the food it hungers for and cannot live without.

So I apologize. I apologize to all the comedians and "nuts" and entertainers on the air.

I apologize to Will Rogers and Amos 'n' Andy and Schumann-Heink and Floyd Gibbons and also to Rudy Vallee.

I apologize to preachers and lecturers and football announcers.

I apologize to fiddlers and pianists and pipe organists and splendid symphony orchestras—and particularly to all the great composers of the past, to Bach and Haydn, Handel and Beethoven. . . . And I apologize, more profoundly still, to the Spirit of Life More Abundant, whose offerings I rejected.

I used to say I'd never own a radio. What an idiot I was!

THE QUESTION BOX

—Central Press Wash. Bureau—

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

Who was R. D. Blackmore, author of "Lorna Doone," when did he write this romance, and is the story founded on fact?

Richard Doddridge Blackmore was an English novelist, born at Longworth, Berkshire, in 1825. He practiced law until his health failed, when he became a fruit farmer, and later began his literary career. He wrote many novels, but his reputation rests almost entirely upon "Lorna Doone," a romance of the seventeenth century. It was published in 1869. While the story itself is not believed to be founded on fact, the setting for it, Doone valley and the surrounding country, is in reality Exmoor and the neighboring district, which became famous with the publication of the novel.

Poetry

What are the words to the poem, "Abou Ben Adhem," and who was the author?

"Abou Ben Adhem" was written by Leigh Hunt (1784-1859). The lines follow:

Abou Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase)

Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace

And saw, within the moonlight in his room,

Making it rich, and like a lily in bloom,

An angel writing in a book of gold:

Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold,

And to the presence in the room

He said:

"What writest thou?"—the vision raised its head,

And with a look made of all sweet accord,

Answered, "The names of those who love the Lord."

"And is mine one?" said Abou.

"Nay, not so,"

Replied the angel. Abou spoke

More low, and cheerily still; and said, "I pray thee, then,

Write me as one that loves his fellow-men."

The angel wrote, and vanished.

The next night

It came again with a greater awakening light,

And showed the names whom God had blessed.

And lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest.

Imitation Gems

What are the ingredients used in the manufacture of "paste" gems? These imitation gems which are made by chemical processes are generally a special variety of glass known as paste, or strass, which consists of pure powdered quartz, 38-59 parts, red lead 28-53 parts, and dry potassium 8-14 parts. The proportions admit of considerable variation, and arsenious oxide, borax, potassium nitrate, aluminum oxide and calcium carbonate are frequently added. The ingredients are powdered separately, carefully mixed, and heated in a sand crucible. The heat is gradually raised to fusion and kept at that temperature for 30 hours, after which it is gradually lowered. The value of the product depends chiefly upon the regularity of the temperature. This glass forms the basis of nearly all imitation gems.

(NOTE: The following pamphlets may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large stamped self-addressed envelope for each to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington D. C.; "Who's Who in Hollywood," "Swimming," "Seeing Washington," Charles P. Stewart's treatise on "Our Government," and "The World War.")

Bo-Broadway

—By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE—

NEW YORK CITY, New York.—The New Waldorf-Astoria is coming along nicely, thank you. The plasterers just moved in the other day and it'll be eight months, at least, before they're finished. They're going to lay half a million square yards of plaster, 60 miles of corner beads and 50 miles of cornices—altogether, eleven hundred tons of plastering materials. The pastor, as a rule, is not impressed by figures. He kids himself into the belief that he's intellectually superior to such foldiers. But the Arabian-Nights prodigality with which Old Man Boomer tosses zeroes around in his construction memoranda of the world's greatest caravanserie, sure does make a dent in the imagination.

WISE GUY

My taxi driver was loquacious: "De guy I jos has before I picks you up, sez: 'Dri' me t' de Harvard Club."

"You mean de Yale Club," I sez. "He gits madaself. 'You hoid wot I sez,' he sez."

"Well, as it toins out, I'm de sucker instead of him. He tells me where t'drive an' finally I sez, 'You gotta excuse me, Mister. I ain't never hoid o' de joint before.'"

THAT MORROW SCHOOL

Elizabeth Morrow, one of Dwight's dotters, after years of preparation, has embarked upon the career of director of a Fairy Tale School.

It's one of those dream batties, with old fashioned surroundings, and modern interiors—a place for toddlers, with a tree shaded yard, sun porches, picket fence, wide lawns, and marigolds and things stuck around.

One room is an ice-cream-soda-pink; another, canary yellow; a third, soft-green, with brightly upholstered arm chairs, sealed down to baby size.

Kids need plenty of color of the right kind. As a matter of fact, we all need color. This machine age is too gray and cold—too steely—too many drag ables.

Doctors have found that color, discriminatingly splashed on the walls of hospitals where the mentally ill are cared for has a beneficial effect on the patients.

Too bad they don't get more color before the brain storm sets in.

SLOW BUT SURE!

FATE OF ROOSEVELT MEANS MUCH TO SMITH, SO STEWART ANALYSES

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

(The first of a series of three articles on the next presidential election.)

WASHINGTON.—November's elections will mean much to an increasing number of presidential candidates in both political parties. The present list of 1932's Democratic possibilities naturally is much longer than the Republican list, for thus far President Hoover's renomination is accepted as a near certainty. A Democratic landslide in November, however, would dim this prospect somewhat and start rival G. O. P. bees a-humming.

On the other hand, several Democrats who now are beginning to look seriously at the 1932 picture have yet to make good this fall or fade into the background.

Unquestionably Franklin D. Roosevelt is the outstanding Democratic figure today, but Roosevelt must be re-elected governor of New York or dwindle immediately—in fact, probably peter out completely.

Al Smith's relationship to Roosevelt is suggestive of Pa Ferguson's relationship to Ma Ferguson in Texas.

The Ferguson-ites, desiring to run Pa, must run Ma.

Roosevelt is devoted to Al, even as Ma Ferguson is devoted to Pa. And even as Ma, whenever nominated, assuredly would willingly step aside in Pa's favor, were it practicable, so undoubtedly would Roosevelt yield to Al if he could make Al president by doing so.

But Ma is beaten, Pa is beaten; if Roosevelt is eliminated, so is Al.

In reality, the comparison does not hold good quite that far.

Pa literally is absolutely dependent upon Ma.

Under existing legal conditions Pa positively cannot run for any public office at all, Ma or no Ma.

Al simply does not choose to.

It is conceivable that he may change his mind. Suppose Roosevelt were to be eliminated from politics in some such fashion (by death, for instance) as to imply no popular reputation of Al's ideas. In an event of this sort it is imaginable that Al would find it necessary to become his own standard bearer again.

The point it is sought to make is this:

Despite his defeat in 1928, in the quest sense Al Smith, rather than Franklin Roosevelt, is 1932's leading Democratic presidential possibility, but (for obvious reasons) he deems it better to exercise his potentiality through Roosevelt—and if Roosevelt with Al's support, fails of re-election to the New York governorship in November, Al automatically has been turned down at least equally emphatically.

In brief, Roosevelt and Al (combined) must win in November to enable Roosevelt (or Al, if one prefers to express it that way) to remain at the head of the list of Democratic possibilities two years hence.

Although Roosevelt (assuming that he wins in New York and thus stays in the presidential running) is sure principally to stress heavier economic issues than prohibition repeal (the wet-and-dry question being essentially frivolous, notwithstanding its urgency), nevertheless all hands agree that the prohibition fight will be the main thing in the next Democratic national convention.

In the G. O. P. convention, too, very likely.

Of course the dries insist that Roosevelt spoiled his presidential chances by coming out as a wet, but this remains to be demonstrated.

Let a few pivotal states, like Illinois, Montana, Massachusetts and Ohio, where prohibition lines are pretty clearly drawn, show wet results in November, and his wetness will be a nomination asset to the New Yorker. If they go the other way, then the dries will be in a position to shout, "We told you so!"

Some political forecasters point to one mistake they think the Democratic dries are making.

These dries are credited with believing that the Democratic two-thirds rule will enable them to block a wet's nomination in 1932, even though the wets may have a majority in the convention—but less (as it is reasonable to suppose) will be the case) than a two-thirds majority.

What the skeptical forecasters suspect them of forgetting is that a simple majority (not necessarily two-thirds) can adopt a platform—which it will be easy to make too wet for any dry to stand on.

True, such a development might split the party wide open.

But, for that matter, plenty of prophets predict that the Republican party also will split wide open on the wet-and-dry issue in 1932. If they both split it will be 50-50.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

—By MRS. MARY MORTON—

MENU HINT

Ground Pork with Dressing

Creamed Cabbage

Waldorf Salad

Pumpkin Pie

Cheese

Coffee

This may be used as a supper or dinner menu. The pork dish shows how one may make a little meat go a long way and produce a good looking, tasty dish.

Today's Recipes

Ground Pork with Dressing—One pound ground pork, one small onion, finely chopped; one cup celery, finely chopped; one-half green pepper, finely chopped; one-half cup bread crumbs, one tablespoon melted butter, salt and pepper to taste. Soak bread in water and squeeze out, leaving moist. Then mix all ingredients together and make into round cakes and fry.

Pumpkin Pie—Two cups steamed strained pumpkin, two-thirds cup brown sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon salt, three eggs, one and one-half cups milk, one-half cup cream. Combine ingredients in order named. Turn into an unbaked shell. And before filling the shell completely full, it is a good plan to set it in the oven and then finish filling the crust. In this way there is no danger of spilling the pumpkin.

Bake the pie in a hot oven, 450 degrees Fahrenheit for the first 10 minutes, after which lower the temperature to 325 degrees and continue baking until pumpkin is firm, 30 or 40 minutes.

Suggestions

For Spotted Stockings

When your silk hose are spotted by a shower try this: Moisten your handkerchief or any small cloth slightly and wipe lightly over the spotted surface, using long, sweeping strokes from the ankle up.

The stocking will become only slightly damp and one will dry while you are doing the other one. The spots will have disappeared like magic.

Handy Rack

A towel rack screwed to the right hand side of the sewing machine on which to hang different parts of the stitching as finished will be found useful.

Hoop Frames

A novel framing of painted or embroidered silhouettes is to purchase cheap wooden embroidery hoops. Lacquer these to harmonize with the picture. Place the print over the smaller hoop and carefully wedge on the other hoop and trim off all edges. Drive a tack in the back from which a cord suspends the picture.

Dr. Clendening Lists Books

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Women bearing the first child are nowadays usually eager for instruction as to what changes are occurring and what is the proper care of the body during that period. During later pregnancies they have learned by experience and previous reading and are less apprehensive.

The following books are recommended for reading by the expectant mother:

"The Prospective Mother," by Dr. J. Morris Simons. (Published by D. Appleton & Co., second edition.)

"Approaching Motherhood," by Dr. George L. Brodhag. (Published by Paul Hoeber, Inc., New York.)

"Healthy Mothers," by Dr. Josephine S. Baker. (Federal Publishing Co., Minneapolis, Minn.)

These books all take up the questions every woman asks far more fully than is possible within the limits of a newspaper article. Many subjects, of course, are of so personal a character that it is generally considered to be bad taste to publish them in a newspaper.

Exercise is generally recommended. But this depends on circumstances. If the mother is weak, easily tired, has been a good deal exhausted by the first months of pregnancy, it should be replaced by rest. Many women have had to stay in bed during the whole period, and have gone through the delivery with no trouble.

But if the mother feels well, and is vigorous and strong, daily exercise is highly beneficial. Walking is the best form of it. During the last two months it should be greatly lessened.

The care of the teeth should be given especial attention. There is an old proverb, "for every child a tooth." This may have had some point in days of ignorance and superstition, but is certainly not necessary true now. Possibly because the demands on the mother's body for calcium to give to the baby causes her teeth to be attacked, or more probably because of the regurgitation of acid stomach juice getting into slight cavities, it is true the teeth are peculiarly liable to decay during the pregnant period. Regular visits to your dentist are more necessary now than at any other time of adult life.

Daily bathing also is more important than ever. The skin is an organ of elimination, and since the expectant mother must eliminate for two, it must be kept especially clear and fresh. A tepid tub or shower bath is advised—neither hot or cold.

Clothes need not be ugly. Loose and comfortable—the French word for pregnancy, entente, means unbound—is all science demands. It is unnecessary for the expectant mother to look "reformed" or like Raymond Duncan or Mahatma Gandhi.

(EDITORS NOTE: Dr. Clendening cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest, however, they will be taken up, in order, in the daily column. Address your queries to Dr. Logan Clendening, care of this paper. Writing legibly and not over 200 words.)

Stay By Untrue Mate

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

THAT OLD, old question is asked me again. Should a woman whose husband is unfaithful and neglectful divorce him?

It's impossible to make a general answer, because no two cases are alike. Some men and women are true as death to their mates, but have other faults so serious that the said mates would almost rather they had this one, which is supposed to be unforgivable.

Conversely, men and women may continually be unfaithful and yet be so lovable in other ways that their mates would rather put up with their lapses, serious as they are, than lose them.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am married and am a mother of a lovely boy of 16 months. But, Miss Lee, I have a husband who is the type that goes out every night with different women."

"At times I beg him to take the baby and me out, but he says he has to take his girl friend. When he comes home he tells me he's crazy about the baby and me. All my friends feel sorry for me and tell me to leave him, but I don't on account of the baby."

"Dear Virginia, this last week a friend came to me and told me no lady thinks much of me for living with him. Shall I leave him, Virginia? He's 3 years old and I'm 21. We've been married two and one-half years now, and he has always been the same."

"At times we sit and talk and he says to me: 'Kiddo, don't worry. There's a silver lining to every dark cloud.' I don't seem to understand if he means he's going to settle down or not."

MARY JANE D.
"P. S. I forgot to tell you. I think I love my husband. I'm not sure."

That postscript of yours contains the real answer to your problem, Mary Jane. If you really love your husband, you may be given the grace and patience to wait until such time as he decides to settle down and be true—if he ever does. If he is good to you, crazy, as he says, about you and the baby, and supports you well, and you love him, it might be worth while to wait and try to win him from these other influences.

I don't believe much in separation where there are children, as you know. And I don't believe in paying much attention to the opinion of friends or neighbors as long as you know you're in the right. And a woman always is right when she decides to stick to the man she promised to love and cherish as long as she can.

If he gets worse and you feel that you can no longer respect yourself if you continue living with him and you think it better for the baby to have no father rather than such a one, you would have to leave; but, as long as you love him—and I think you must, even if you are not sure—stay by for awhile.

RACHEL D. C.: Isn't it possible for your husband to make a home for you and the babies apart from his mother? That would be the best arrangement. Two women living in the same house can rarely get along happily.

CUPID AND QUEENIE: Such a lot of understanding and misunderstanding as the e is in your letter! Maybe the fact that your boy friend doesn't understand you and your girl friend's boy friend does, and vice versa, is part of the reason you like to go together, a bit of mystery in another's character being intriguing.

However that may be, as school boys, why not go out with other girls, who ask you for dates? Surely, accept the boy's invitation, unless you are too much afraid of offending your respective boy friends.

Form Club of Reducers for Beauty

By GLADYS GLAD

TO MY MIND, the worst thing about a reducing course is the monotony of it. I've known many women—and I guess you have, too—who start to reduce with all the enthusiasm in the world. A few days later they're too tired and bored to continue. As a result, they go back to their old ways and fail to lose their excess weight.

A letter along these lines that interested me greatly reached my desk the other day. It came from a girl in Phoenix, Ariz., who had hit upon a rather novel idea. She had found that, although she wanted to lose about 15 pounds, the monotony of a reducing course was beginning to get on her nerves. So she interested several other girls in her idea and formed what she called the Gladys Glad Reducing Club.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

JESUS CALLS SINNERS — Jesus saith unto them, They that are whole have no need of the physician, but they that are sick: I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.—Mark 2:17.

A BAD BREAK

The widespread strike of German metal workers comes at a particularly embarrassing moment for the German government. Chancellor Brüning must have at least the friendly neutrality of the Social Democrats if his cabinet is to stand off the onslaughts of the extremist wings in the reichstag. The metal workers have walked out because the government approved a reduction of from six to eight per cent in their wages ordered by an arbitration board. They have thus made it necessary for the socialist party in the reichstag to choose between supporting the government and the wage reduction; and standing by the wage-earners, who represent the bulk of its membership. Obviously that is a hard choice to make.

A few days ago the Social Democrats held a huge demonstration in Berlin and warned Adolf Hitler that if he did not watch his step he would find thousands of disciplined workers' fists under his nose. That was a hopeful gesture. The strike in the metal industry now throws the future course of the Social Democrats again into the lap of the gods. As they have the largest vote in the reichstag, what they do or omit to do is of tremendous importance to the government. The fact that they comprise in their rank and file a large section of the soberest and most industrious element in Germany, which stands most to lose from domestic disorder or foreign complications, affords the best ground for expecting that if it comes to a showdown between the moderates and the extremists they will take their stand with the former, wage cut to the contrary notwithstanding.

PARTIAL CENSUS

The national industrial conference board suggests, with considerable plausibility, that it would be advantageous to take at least a partial census of the country midway between each two constitutionally obligatory decennial enumerations.

As it is, we go from one census year to another basing birth and death rates and other important computations on the more or less accurate estimates of population made annually by the census bureau. Sometimes a state or city wakes up on the morning after the census has been taken to find that it has "lost" population when actually it hasn't suffered any such calamity. The appearance of loss is due to the fact that the estimated figure for the previous year was too high. The possibility of costly errors in basing vital statistics for nine years out of every decade on such estimates is apparent.

ULTRA OPTIMISTIC

The Milwaukee ex-brewers are ultra optimistic if they are expecting a modification of the Eighteenth amendment within a year, and are getting ready to resume business on the more or less accurate expectation. Even if the country were in an overwhelmingly favorable state of mind, which it isn't, the mechanics of a modification would take longer than twelve months. Meanwhile, unseemly eagerness on the part of former brewers is likely to put a crimp in their prospects. If this country modifies the Eighteenth amendment, it will not do so for the purpose of accommodating those who want to brew or distill, but to promote a temperance movement that will be on a practical basis.

The San Francisco Chronicle insists that city people are the best walkers. They certainly have to be the fastest, if they want to keep on being walkers.

HUMBLE CONFESSION

I swore I'd never own a radio. I sneered at people who did. I grunted when they talked about all the enjoyment they got out of their radio. I told them things. I said there were so many other things to be done in the world that it was nonsense for any half-wit intelligent human being to spend even the smallest part of his time in front of a radio.

Life was more interesting than any radio. Reading a book was more interesting. Actually getting out and going to a concert was more interesting than listening to a thin, reedy broadcast of a concert. A radio was second hand amusement. I told them a lot of other things, too. . . In fact, I think I made it quite clear to all my friends that I didn't want a radio—and didn't have any more use for one than I have for a machine gun—and that I'd never have one of the things in the house.

And then somehow I got a radio. I was sort of led into it. I didn't mean to get it, but I did. It came in the front door and sat down in a corner, where the phonograph used to be—the phonograph is sulking in another room now—and conquered ME. Made me realize all that I've been missing. Made me see that I've been missing life itself.

I'd thought I was free from the need of a radio. It taught me I wasn't free at all, but chained to the past. I was an ignorant slave. I thought I had enough, the radio showed me how little I had. I thought I was modern. I wasn't. I thought I was living in the twentieth century. I wasn't; I was living in the dull nineties.

Suddenly I discovered, through the radio, that a human being cannot reject any part of life without losing by it. Trash, nonsense, pomposity, triviality, commonplace, absurdity—all these come through the air and into your room with that radio. But truth, strength, laughter, tears, melody, inspiration, splendor and beauty come, too. A twist of the wrist—and the trash is silenced. Another twist—and your home is filled with glory. The challenge is there and the human spirit must meet that challenge. It must have strength enough to reject what it does not need and claim with joy the food it hungers for and cannot live without.

So I apologize. I apologize to all the comedians and "nuts" and entertainers on the air.

I apologize to Will Rogers and Amos 'n' Andy and Schumann-Heink and Floyd Gibbons and also to Rudy Vallee.

I apologize to preachers and lecturers and football announcers.

I apologize to fiddlers and pianists and pipe organists and splendid symphony orchestras—and particularly to all the great composers of the past, to Bach and Haydn, Handel and Beethoven. . . And I apologize, more profoundly still, to the Spirit of Life More Abundant, whose offerings I rejected.

I used to say I'd never own a radio. What an idiot I was!

THE QUESTION BOX

—Central Press Wash. Bureau—

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

Who was R. D. Blackmore, author of "Lorna Doone," when did he write this romance, and is the story founded on fact?

Richard Doddridge Blackmore was an English novelist, born at Longworth, Berkshire, in 1825. He practiced law until his health failed, when he became a fruit farmer, and later began his literary career. He wrote many novels, but his reputation rests almost entirely upon "Lorna Doone," a romance of the seventeenth century. It was published in 1869. While the story itself is not believed to be founded on fact, the setting for it, Doone valley and the surrounding country, is in reality Exmoor and the neighboring district, which became famous with the publication of the novel.

Poetry

What are the words to the poem, "Abou Ben Adhem," and who was the author?

"Abou Ben Adhem" was written by Leigh Hunt (1784-1859). The lines follow:

Abou Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase!) Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace, And saw, within the moonlight in his room, Making it rich, and like a life in bloom, An angel writing in a book of gold: Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold, And to the presence in the room he said, "What writest thou?"—the vision raised its head, And with a look made of all sweet accord,

Answered, "The names of those who love the Lord." "And is mine one?" said Abou. "Nay, not so."

Replied the angel. Abou spoke a low, low, still; and said, "I pray thee, then, Write me as one that loves his fellow-men." The angel wrote, and vanished. It came next night with a greater awakening light, And showed the names whom God had blessed. And lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest.

Imitation Gems

What are the ingredients used in the manufacture of "paste" gems? These imitation gems which are made by chemical processes are generally a special variety of glass known as paste, or strass, which consists of pure powdered quartz, 28-59 parts, red lead 28-53 parts, and dry potassium 6-14 parts. The proportions admit of considerable variation, and arsenious oxide, borax, potassium nitrate, aluminum oxide and calcium carbonate are frequently added. The ingredients are powdered separately, carefully mixed, and heated in a sand crucible. The heat is gradually raised to fusion and kept at that temperature for 30 hours, after which it is gradually lowered. The value of the product depends chiefly upon the regularity of the temperature. This glass forms the basis of nearly all imitation gems.

NEW YORK CITY, New York.—The new Waldorf-Astoria is coming along nicely, thank you. The plasterers just moved in the other day and it'll be eight months, at least, before they're finished. They're going to lay half a million square yards of plaster, 60 miles of corner beads and 50 miles of cornices—altogether, eleven hundred tons of plastering materials.

The Pastor, as a rule, is not impressed by figures. He hides himself into the belief that he's intellectually superior to such foolery. "Dear Virginia, this last week a friend came to me and told me no lady thinks much of me for living with him. Shall I leave him, Virginia, or wait and see if he changes? He's 24 years old and I'm 21. We've been married two and one-half years now, and he has always been the same."

"At times we sit and talk and he says to me: 'Kiddo, don't worry. There's a silver lining to every dark cloud.' I don't seem to understand if he means he's going to settle down or not."

MARY JANE D. "P. S. I forgot to tell you. I think I love my husband. I'm not sure."

That postscript of yours contains the real answer to your problem, Mary Jane. If you really love your husband, you may be given the grace and patience to wait until such time as he decides to settle down and be true—if he ever does. If he is good to you, crazy, as he says, about you and the baby, and supports you well, and you love him, it might be worth while to wait and try to win him from these other influences.

I don't believe much in separation where there are children, as you know. And I don't believe in paying much attention to the opinion of friends or neighbors as long as you know you're in the right. And a woman always is right when she decides to stick to the man she promised to love and cherish as long as she can. If he gets worse and you feel that you can no longer respect yourself if you continue living with him and you think it better for the baby to have no father rather than such a one, you would have to leave; but, as long as you love him—and I think you must, even if you are not sure—stay by for awhile.

RACHEL D. L.: Isn't it possible for your husband to make a home for you and the babies apart from his mother? That would be the best arrangement. Two women living in the same house can rarely get along happily.

CUPID AND QUEENIE: Such a lot of understanding and misunderstanding as the e is in your letter! Maybe the fact that your boy friend doesn't understand you and your girl friend's boy friend does, and vice versa, is part of the reason you like to go together, a bit of mystery in another's character being intriguing.

However that may be, as school-boys, why not go out with other boys who ask you for dates? Surely, accept the boy's invitation, unless you are too much afraid of offending your respective boy friends.

Form Club of Reducers for Beauty

—By GLADYS GLAD—

TO MY MIND, the worst thing about a reducing course is the monotony of it. I've known many women—and I guess you have, too—who start to reduce with all the enthusiasm in the world. A few days later they're too tired and bored to continue. As a result, they go back to their old ways and fail to lose their excess weight.

A letter about these lines that interested me greatly reached my desk the other day. It came from a girl in Phoenix, Ariz., who had hit upon a rather novel idea. She had found that, although she wanted to lose about 15 pounds, the monotony of a reducing course was beginning to get on her nerves. So she interested several other girls in her idea and formed what she called the Gladys Glad Reducing club.

Each of the girls in the club wrote for and received the reduction course that is contained in my booklet, "The New Figure." They all started my course on the same day, and then reported at regular meetings as to the progress they were making. The idea of competition, it seems, stirred their interests and made them want to follow my reduction instructions to the letter.

Frankly, I admit that girl's idea was rather grand. Why don't you form such a group in your neighborhood if you are overweight? You needn't call it the Gladys Glad Reducing club. Name it after the boy friend, the husband or yourself. As long as it helps you to achieve the weight you want without the usual boredom, that's all that counts.

Get some fun out of it. By following my reducing course faithfully, the average woman should lose from six to ten pounds in two weeks. If a girl in your club loses more than that, you'll know that she has weakened herself by exercising beyond my orders and has been cheating. And if a girl fails to lose the customary weight, you'll know she has been cheating by tapping the ice-box on the sly. You may penalize such club members in any way you decide.

Then, too, I like the idea for another reason. If more women could get together and talk about their reduction problems in a sensible manner, we wouldn't be hearing so much about the sad results of freak diets and extreme exercises.

Such clubs, of course, need not be limited to women who are overweight. Rare, indeed, is the woman of today who thinks she is too thin. But if there are any such in your town, why not a Gaining club?

At any rate, just one thing more. Always remember that I'm only too happy to help you in any little problems that might arise. Form your club and write me as often as you wish. If I can help you, I'll be Gladys—the sport.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Standard Weight M. M. and L. C.: The standard weight for a girl 14 years of age and 5 feet in height is about 100 pounds. A girl 23 years old and 5 feet 1-2 inches tall should weigh about 130 pounds.

Legs

Noy: Dancing will help to shape your calves and ankles. Do not wear a tight night cap, as it retards circulation. A rub down with alcohol after practice would be most stimulating. Your diet should consist mostly of fruits and vegetables.

EDITOR'S NOTE: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write too thin of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin, for each to cover cost of printing and mailing. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

—By MRS. MARY MORTON—

MENU HINT

Ground Pork with Dressing
Creamed Cabbage
Waldorf Salad Pumpkin Pie
Cheese Coffee
This may be used as a supper or dinner menu. The pork dish shows how one may make a little meat go a long way and produce a good looking, tasty dish.

Today's Recipes

Ground Pork with Dressing—One pound ground pork, one small onion, finely chopped; one cup celery, finely chopped; one-half green pepper, finely chopped; one-half cup bread crumbs, one tablespoon melted butter, salt and pepper to taste. Soak bread in water and squeeze out, leaving moist. Then mix all ingredients together and make into round cakes and fry.

Pumpkin Pie—Two cups steamed strained pumpkin, two-thirds cup brown sugar, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon salt, three eggs, one and one-half cups milk, one-half cup cream. Combine ingredients in order named. Turn into an unbaked shell. And before filling the shell completely full, it is a good plan to set it in the oven and then finish filling the crust. In this way there is no danger of spilling the pumpkin.

Bake the pie in a hot oven, 450 degrees Fahrenheit for the first 10 minutes, after which lower the temperature to 325 degrees and continue baking until pumpkin is firm, 30 or 40 minutes.

Suggestions

For Spotted Stockings When your silk hose are spotted by a shower try this: Moisten your handkerchief or any small cloth slightly and wipe lightly over the spotted surface, using long, sweeping strokes from the ankle upwards. The stocking will become only slightly damp and one will dry while you are doing the other one. The spots will have disappeared like magic.

Handy Rack

A towel rack screwed to the right hand side of the sewing machine on which to hang different parts of the stitching as finished will be found useful.

Hoop Frames

A novel framing of painted or embroidered silhouettes is to purchase cheap wooden embroidery hoops. Lacquer these to harmonize with the picture. Place the print over the smaller hoop and carefully wedge on the other hoop and trim off all edges. Drive a tack in the back from which a cord suspends the picture.

Peter's Adventures

—By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent—

LADY-BUG'S HARD LUCK

"Hi-y! Get out of here!" A sudden shrill cry rent the peace of the Ant-Hill cow pasture. Startled Peter grabbed hold of Busy, and Busy clutched Peter, and all the little cows began to tremble. And for a moment all was confusion—yawning shrieking, feet shuffling, a running hither and yon. Then a sharp yell, a moan of pain, silence!

"What was it?" whispered Peter, fearfully.

"A lady-bug, likely," whispered Busy. Low as the Worker Ant's voice had been, it was overheard. A form stepped out of the shadows. Peter almost fell backward, would it Busy had not held him.

"Don't be scared. It's only a sentinel," declared Busy, speaking out loud. The shadowy form gave a husky chuckle.

"Right!" the stranger declared. "And you were right the first time, also! By means best known to herself a Lady-Bug sneaked down some back street and was up-toeing into the inner tunnel when I caught her and chased her out. Unless I miss my guess it's a sorry insect she is that she didn't stay on top of the ground where she belongs, instead of playing sneak-thief and risking her safety in places she knew nothing about."

"What did she want?" asked Peter, muttering courage.

"Want? Our cows, of course!" the sentinel spoke sharply, as if a little out of patience that anybody should know so little. "If I hadn't been on guard, Lady-Bug would have worked her will on the poor things."

"Milked them dry?" questioned Peter.

"Worse than that. Eaten them up," replied Sentinel Ant.

Next: "No Good News for Peter."

The list of undefeated and untied major college football teams over the length and breadth of the land has dwindled to nineteen and the goal lines of only four elevens remain uncrossed.

Latest figures on the national football standings disclose that Dartmouth, Fordham, Army and Pittsburgh are the only teams which have not been scored upon this season. Each has played and won four games.

Dartmouth, succeeding Colgate, leads the entire country in points scored with 225, while Fordham has counted 153, the Army, 138 and Pittsburgh, 134.

Each of the four unbeaten and untied teams with records of not being scored against, face severe tests Saturday and may drop from the ranks of undefeated teams.

Dartmouth opposes Harvard; Fordham tackles the New York University "Violets"; Pittsburgh meets the tough Notre Dame assignment and the Army may meet its nemesis in Yale.

Wilberforce University gridders, having dropped a heart-breaker to Fisk at Nashville, Tenn., last Saturday, are pointing for the annual classic with Tuskegee Institute at Soldier's Field in Chicago Saturday this week.

Tuskegee won the national championship in colored college football last season, giving Wilberforce its only defeat by a score of 6 to 0 at Soldier's Field in one of the most bitterly fought games ever played in the middle West.

Played before 25,000 spectators, the largest number to ever witness a colored college football game, this clash will not soon be forgotten by those who witnessed the nerve-racking struggle.

In the first half Wilberforce clearly outplayed Tuskegee and had the ball three different times inside the five-yard line, always lacking the punch to put it over. It was a rapid stab of a forward pass from Harrison to Stevenson that won the game for Tuskegee in the last few minutes of play. The pass was partly blocked but caromed into the waiting hands of the receiver, who was unguarded.

Wilberforce students believe a victory over Tuskegee would put the Bulldogs back in the running for the national championship despite the Fisk defeat.

Although the new basketball guides have not yet been released by the publishers, the changes voted by the rules committee when it met last April, are listed in "The Coach," house publication of the Lowe and Campbell sporting goods company, and are as follows:

1.—A player fouled in the act of shooting will be awarded only one free throw if he makes the basket. In event the foul prevents a score, two free throws will be awarded as in the past.

2.—Failing to remain in the jump circle until the ball is tapped will constitute a technical foul, except when the ball is tapped into the basket, in which case the free throw will be voided.

3.—On a jump the ball may be tapped not more than twice by either player.

4.—In case of missed free throws the ball will remain in play instead of being returned to center.

5.—When time is taken out for free throws, the watch shall be restarted when the ball leaves the player's hands. Instead of when he takes his position on the free throw line.

6.—A player removed for a substitute may not return to the game until after play has restarted.

7.—Not more than three overtime periods shall be played in high school games and a rest period of five minutes shall be allowed after the first overtime period. Local committees are given the authority to make the final overtime period a "sudden death" test, with the first team to score winning the game.

8.—The circumference of the ball shall not be more than thirty-one inches and not less than thirty inches. The weight maximum shall be twenty-three ounces and the minimum twenty ounces.

'LITTLE BUGS' TO PLAY TROY JUNIORS

Xenia Central High's "Little Bugs" will visit Troy Friday afternoon for a return game with the Trojan freshman football team. The Troy juniors defeated Coach Patterson's eleven here several weeks ago, 27 to 14.

The "Little Bugs" have some things in common with their big brothers, the Buccaneer varsity, in that they have lost two games this season.

The Buccaneer junior squad, also like the high school varsity, has its injuries and "Pinch" Adair, stocky little quarterback, will be unable to play Friday because of a broken finger.

FLORIDANS LEAD MINIATURE GOLF

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 22.—J. K. Scott, Jacksonville sharpshooter, along with Newton Coggins, a fellow Floridian, led the field of more than 100 pee-wee golfers today as the fourth round of the national miniature golf tournament got under way.

Scott who led the pack at the end of the first eighteen holes Monday, finished his fifty-four holes with a 53-55-59-167. Coggins was one stroke behind him with a 168.

CASUALTIES WRECK CHANCES IN SECOND LEAGUE GAME HERE

Fred Dalton Latest; Opposition Will Be Strong

By PHIL FRAME

The football troubles of Xenia Central High School are becoming a source of great concern to Coach "Pinky" Wilson as the Buccaneer squad prepares this week for its second Miami Valley League encounter of the season with Miamiburg High at Cox Athletic Field Friday afternoon.

The same injury jinx which plagued the team last season is again camping on the trail of the Bucs and at present there are almost as many candidates for the hospital as there are for the football team.

The latest blow to throw cold water on hopes for a Xenia victory Friday came this week when Freddie Dalton, sophomore backfield star and the most promising among the newcomers on the team this year, showed up with the mumps—of all things—and Coach Wilson is convinced that Lady Luck is certainly giving the boys a run-around.

Glance over this list of cripples—all regulars: Howard Thompson, halfback, out for the season with a dislocated shoulder; Jimmie Ralls, end, out for another week or so with an injured leg; Robert Kinsey, veteran tackle, nursing an injured shoulder which is expected to keep him out of the lineup Friday; Freddie Dalton, fullback, down with the mumps; Birch Bell, quarterback, a sore heel and in general convalescent condition.

Is it any wonder that Coach Wilson views the coming Miamiburg contest with alarm, to use a new expression?

The survivors of Xenia's ill-fated football campaign are going through short and snappy but light workouts this week as Coach Wilson hopes to preserve the remainder of the squad from injuries in practice.

All the offensive and defensive strategy the squad is able to absorb this week will be turned loose against the Buccaneers and special emphasis is being placed on a more adequate pass defense, a department in which the Bucs have exhibited great weakness to date.

Officials for Friday's game will be H. G. Cutler as referee; H. Schwab, umpire and W. C. Fish, linesman. The contest will start at 3 o'clock with the injury riddled Bucs hoping for the best but fearing the worst.

'BURGERS READY
MIAMISBURG, Oct. 22.—After an inglorious defeat at the hands of Troy last Saturday, the Miamiburg entrants in the Miami Valley League are in the midst of their stiffest week of drill. Instead of the usual Monday night's rest, the entire squad drilled intensively.

Xenia is the next foe for the locals and the first stringers will start the game Friday afternoon. No serious injuries handicap Coach Wright and he will be able to use the entire first and second teams.

Practice this week should see a strengthening of the Star City aerial defense. This difficulty appeared in both the Troy and the Franklin games in the past few weeks and unless the passing of the opponents is checked, more than one game will go down on the wrong side of the ledger.

Donovan, flashy freshman, halfback is back in uniform after a lay off of several weeks and may start at the half post instead of Kelly, another freshman back. Shank, a senior, has appeared to have won his berth at right half as he was responsible for most of the gaining in the game with Troy.

Rea Weaver has replaced Kurtz at the signal barking position and this change will add to the defensive ability of the Blue and White team. The line will probably remain intact. The starting line-up for the game with Xenia Friday:

XENIA ODD FELLOWS DEDICATE HALL AT PROGRAM TUESDAY

William F. Watkins, Marietta, O., grand master of the Ohio I. O. O. F. Lodge; Charles F. Cross, Columbus, grand secretary and G. F. Brown, Lebanon, past grand master, were present Tuesday evening at dedication exercises of the I. O. O. F. Hall, W. Main St. Two hundred Odd Fellows attended the ceremony from Dayton, Wilmington, Jamestown, Fairfield, Yellow Springs and other surrounding towns.

The address of welcome to the visitors was given by former Mayor John W. Prugh and the response was made by Dr. A. C. Messenger. State officers present gave short talks at the dedication at which the grand master presided.

The regular I. O. O. F. dedication ritual was read and members of the subordinate lodge, Rebekahs and the Patriarch Militants from Dayton took part in the ceremony. The latter is a military branch of the I. O. O. F. order and appeared in uniform. Special music on the program was furnished by the I. O. O. F. orchestra, the Masonic quartet and a vocal solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple" was sung by Lawrence Wagner.

GOOD FOOTBALL

Elder shows how to punt.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles on "Good Football," written through the Central Press Association for this newspaper by Jack Elder, former Notre Dame gridiron star.

By JACK ELDER

Ex-Notre Dame Football Star
Now Central Press Football Writer

A long, high spiral punt sails through the air and into the waiting arms of a receiver. Two ends sweep down on him and cut him. This, young fellows, is the result down before he has taken two steps. This, young fellows, is the result of two things—a good punter and a long, high punt which permits the ends to get down under the ball before it lands.

But you can rest assured that the punter who placed the ball down did not do it by accident. His action was the result of long, hard days of practice during which he punted the ball thousands of times until he was able to boot it sixty yards, four times out of five, while under fire.

To punt well isn't hard, but certain form must be used if you wish to be consistent.

To punt correctly, hold the ball parallel to the ground with one end pointing ahead and slightly to the left. It should be held between the hands so that when it is dropped in the process of picking it will fall parallel to the ground. The laces of the ball should be held slightly on the right side so as to give the ball a spiral motion when hit by the foot.

As the ball is dropped it is met by the foot, the toe of which is depressed, and clubbed with the instep. After the ball has been hit the foot must follow through if you wish to get distance and height.

While all this is going on it is most essential that the eyes are kept constantly on the ball.

The accompanying pictures show how the ball is held with the hands arranged so that they are released at the same time, keeping the ball on an even keel. Note how the ball fits in the grove made by depressing the toe; how the knee is held stiff, permitting the ball to be clubbed, and how the eyes are kept glued on the ball.

In a game when you are back punting and see a big lineman charging down on you, what are you to do?

You are to do nothing, for if you are keeping your eyes on THE BALL you won't see anything but the oval and will get off a good kick.

XENIAN RELEASED ON HABEAS CORPUS AFTER ARREST HERE

Arrested several days ago by county authorities on a warrant telegraphed from Hoxie, Ark., where he is wanted on a charge of selling property under false pretenses, Albert J. Parker, proprietor of the American Restaurant on W. Main St., obtained his release from the county jail Tuesday on a writ of habeas corpus granted by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Application for the writ was filed by Parker through Attorney Marcus McCallister, and he furnished $500 bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court at 9 a. m. Tuesday, November 28, for a final hearing.

Attorney McCallister announced that his client intends to fight extradition to Arkansas.

The affidavit filed against him at Hoxie is said to be an outgrowth of a transaction whereby Parker sold his restaurant business in that city and came to Xenia. Upon his arrival here he purchased the American Restaurant on W. Main St.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A flood of selling orders for the industrial stocks and utilities poured in over the market at the first top of the opening going today.

United States Steel, Westinghouse, Standard Oil of New Jersey, General Electric and other market blue-chips fell through to new low levels for the year, with losses extending from 2 to 5 points in heavy trading in the first half-hour. A score of the best-known steel, copper, oil, electrical manufacturing, theatrical and specialty stocks were pressed for sale at the lowest prices in a year or more.

A decrease of 2 per cent in steel mills operations, a decline of 17,600 freight car loadings for the week and further cuts in crude and refined oil prices were the principal factors affecting prices in this period. Sweeping away of margin protection in speculative accounts and opening up of stop-loss orders accentuated the downward price move.

Says It Helped Him More Than Anything Else Did

Every day new proof of the good results Arvo is bringing to men and women comes to us. And the best part of their testimony is that Arvo has brought them results after other medicines had failed to bring them relief. Arvo does not take the place of a doctor—it is a fine tonic, the kind he himself would prescribe for you if you were to go to him for a remedy. It pays to take care of your system, for it is when your resistance is not great that you are most likely to get the other ills that a run-down system is the fore-runner of.

John Gross, World War veteran living at 3124 Home Avenue, Dayton, is one of the latest to write to us regarding the good he has gotten as a result of taking Arvo. Here is what he writes:

"I went through the World War, being in the 166th Infantry, Company I, 42nd Division, and was wounded in the right shoulder, besides being gassed and shell-shocked. Naturally, my system suffered as a result, and I was troubled with constipation, extreme weakness, nerves on edge, flashes in the head, and shooting pains down through my legs and knees. Through the insistence of the Arvo man, I tried a bottle of Arvo and felt better right away. I am now on my fourth bottle, and I feel better, sleep better, eat better and am better in every way."

If you are not feeling 100 per cent yourself, try a bottle of Arvo. It is a real tonic, good for young and old, and is guaranteed to produce results. All druggists carry it.

The list of undefeated and untied major college football teams over the length and breadth of the land has dwindled to nineteen and the goal lines of only four eleven remain uncrossed.

Latest figures on the national football standings disclose that Dartmouth, Fordham, Army and Pittsburgh are the only teams which have not been scored upon this season. Each has played and won four games.

Dartmouth, succeeding Colgate, leads the entire country in points scored with 225, while Fordham has counted 153, the Army, 138 and Pittsburgh, 134.

Each of the four unbeaten and untied teams with records of not being scored against, face severe tests Saturday and may drop from the ranks of undefeated teams.

Dartmouth opposes Harvard; Fordham tackles the New York University "Violets"; Pittsburgh kets the tough Notre Dame assignment and the Army may meet its nemesis in Yale.

Wilberforce University gridders, having dropped a heart-breaker to Fisk at Nashville, Tenn., last Saturday, are pointing for the annual classic with Tuskegee Institute at Soldier's Field in Chicago Saturday this week.

Tuskegee won the national championship in colored college football last season, giving Wilberforce its only defeat by a score of 9 to 6 at Soldier's Field in one of the most bitterly fought games ever played in the middle West.

Played before 25,000 spectators, the largest number to ever witness a colored college football game, this clash will not soon be forgotten by those who witnessed the nerve-racking struggle.

In the first half Wilberforce clearly outplayed Tuskegee and had the ball three different times inside the five-yard line, always lacking the punch to put it over. It was a rapid stab of a forward pass from Harrison to Stevenson that won the game for Tuskegee in the last few minutes of play. The pass was partly blocked but caromed into the waiting hands of the receiver, who was unguarded.

Wilberforce students believe a victory over Tuskegee would put the Bulldogs back in the running for the national championship despite the Fisk defeat.

Although the new basketball guides have not yet been released by the publishers, the changes voted by the rules committee when it met last April, are listed in "The Coach," house publication of the Lowe and Campbell sporting goods company, and are as follows:

1.—A player fouled in the act of shooting will be awarded only one free throw if he makes the basket. In event the foul prevents a score, two free throws will be awarded as in the past.

2.—Falling to remain in the jump circle until the ball is tapped will constitute a technical foul, except when the ball is tapped into the basket, in which case the free throw will be voided.

3.—On a jump the ball may be tapped not more than twice by either player.

4.—In case of missed free throws the ball will remain in play instead of being returned to center.

5.—When time is taken out for free throws, the watch shall be restarted when the ball leaves the player's hands. Instead of when he takes his position on the free throw line.

6.—A player removed for a substitute may not return to the game until after play has restarted.

7.—Not more than three overtime periods shall be played in high school games and a rest period of five minutes shall be allowed after the first overtime period. Local committees are given the authority to make the final overtime period a "sudden death" test, with the first team to score winning the game.

8.—The circumference of the ball shall not be more than thirty-one inches and not less than thirty inches. The weight maximum shall be twenty-three ounces and the minimum twenty ounces.

'LITTLE BUGS' TO PLAY TROY JUNIORS

Xenia Central High's "Little Bugs" will visit Troy Friday afternoon for a return game with the Trojan freshman football team. The Troy juniors defeated Coach Patterson's eleven here several weeks ago, 27 to 14.

The "Little Bugs" have some things in common with their big brothers, the Bucaneer varsity, in that they have lost two games this season.

The Bucaneer junior squad, also like the high school varsity, has its injuries and "Pinch" Adair, stocky little quarterback, will be unable to play Friday because of a broken finger.

FLORIDANS LEAD MINIATURE GOLF

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 22.—J. K. Scott, Jacksonville sharpshooter, along with Newton Coggins, a fellow Floridian, led the field of more than 100 pee-wee golfers today as the fourth round of the national miniature golf tournament got under way.

Scott who led the pack at the end of the first eighteen holes Monday, finished his fifty-four holes with a 53-55-59-167. Coggins was one stroke behind him with a 168.

CASUALTIES WRECK CHANCES IN SECOND LEAGUE GAME HERE

Fred Dalton Latest; Opposition Will Be Strong

By PHIL FRAME
The football troubles of Xenia Central High School are becoming a source of great concern to Coach "Pinky" Wilson as the Bucaneer squad prepares this week for its second Miami Valley League encounter of the season with Miamiburg High at Cox Athletic Field Friday afternoon.

The same injury jinx which plagued the team last season is again camping on the trail of the Buc and at present there are almost as many candidates for the hospital as there are for the football team.

The latest blow to throw cold water on hopes for a Xenia victory Friday came this week when Freddie Dalton, sophomore backfield star and the most promising among the newcomers on the team this year, showed up with the mumps—of all things—and Coach Wilson is convinced that Lady Luck is certainly giving the boys a run-around.

Glance over this list of cripples—all regulars: Howard Thompson, halfback, out for the season with a dislocated shoulder; Jimmie Ralls, end, out for another week or so with an injured leg; Robert Kinsey, veteran tackle, nursing an injured shoulder which is expected to keep him out of the lineup Friday; Freddie Dalton, fullback, down with the mumps; Birch Bell, quarterback, a sore heel and in general convalescent condition.

Is it any wonder that Coach Wilson views the coming Miamiburg contest with alarm, to use a new expression?

The survivors of Xenia's ill-fated football campaign are going through short and snappy but light workouts this week as Coach Wilson hopes to preserve the remainder of the squad from injuries in practice.

All the offensive and defensive strategy the squad is able to absorb this week will be turned loose against the Burgers and special emphasis is being placed on a more adequate pass defense, a department in which the Buc have exhibited great weakness to date. Officials for Friday's game will be H. G. Cutler as referee; H. Schwab, umpire and W. C. Fish, headlinesman. The contest will start at 3 o'clock with the injury riddled Buc hoping for the best but fearing the worst.

BURGERS READY
MIAMISBURG, Oct. 22.—After an inglorious defeat at the hands of Troy last Saturday, the Miamiburg entrants in the Miami Valley League are in the midst of their stiffest week of drill. Instead of the usual Monday night's rest, the squad drilled intensively.

Xenia is the next foe for the locals and the first stringers will start the game Friday afternoon. No serious injuries handicap Coach Wright and he will be able to use the entire first and second teams.

Practice this week should see a strengthening of the Star City aerial defense. This difficulty appeared in both the Troy and the Franklin games in the past few weeks and unless the passing of the opponents is checked, more than one game will go down on the wrong side of the ledger.

Dovonan, flashy freshman halfback is back in uniform after a lay off of several weeks and may start at the half post instead of Kelly, another freshman back. Shank, a senior, has appeared to have won his berth at right half as he was responsible for most of the gaining in the game with Troy. Rex Weaver has replaced Kurtz at the signal barking position and this change will add to the defensive ability of the Blue and White team.

The line will probably remain intact. The starting lineup for the game with Xenia Friday:

XENIA ODD FELLOWS DEDICATE HALL AT PROGRAM TUESDAY

William F. Watkins, Marietta, O., grand master of the Ohio I. O. O. F. Lodge; Charles F. Cross, Columbus, grand secretary and G. F. Brown, Lebanon, past grand master, were present Tuesday evening at dedication exercises of the I. O. O. F. Hall, W. Main St. Two hundred Odd Fellows attended the ceremony from Dayton, Wilmington, Jamestown, Fairfield, Yellow Springs and other surrounding towns.

The address of welcome to the visitors was given by former Mayor John W. Prugh and the response was made by Dr. A. C. Messenger. State officers present gave short talks at the dedication at which the grand master presided. The regular I. O. O. F. dedication ritual was read and members of the subordinate lodge, Rebekahs and the Patriarch Militants from Dayton took part in the ceremony. The latter is a military branch of the I. O. O. F. order and appeared in uniform. Special music on the program was furnished by the I. O. O. F. orchestra, the Masonic quartet and a vocal solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple" was sung by Lawrence Wagner.

GOOD FOOTBALL

By JACK ELDER

JACK ELDER

Elder shows how to punt.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of articles on "Good Football," written through the Central Press Association for this newspaper by Jack Elder, former Notre Dame gridiron star.

By JACK ELDER

Ex-Notre Dame Football Star
Now Central Press Football Writer

A long, high spiral punt sails through the air and into the waiting arms of a receiver. Two ends sweep down on him and cut him.

This, young fellows, is the result down before he has taken two steps.

This, young fellows, is the result of two things—a good punter and a long, high punt which permits the ends to get down under the ball before it lands.

But you can rest assured that the punter who placed the ball down there did not do it by accident. His action was the result of long, hard days of practice during which he punted the ball thousands of times until he was able to boot it sixty yards, four times out of five, while under fire.

To punt well isn't hard, but certain form must be used if you wish to be consistent.

To punt correctly, hold the ball parallel to the ground with one end pointing ahead and slightly to the left. It should be held between the hands so that when it is dropped in the process of picking it will fall parallel to the ground. The laces of the ball should be held slightly on the right side so as to give the ball a spiral motion when hit by the foot.

As the ball is dropped it is met by the foot, the toe of which is depressed, and clubbed with the instep. After the ball has been hit the foot must follow through if you wish to get distance and height.

While all this is going on it is most essential that the eyes are kept constantly on the ball.

The accompanying pictures show how the ball is held with the hands arranged so that they are released at the same time, keeping the ball on an even keel. Note how the ball fits in the groove made by depressing the toe; how the knee is held stiff, permitting the ball to be clubbed, and how the eyes are kept glued on the ball.

In a game when you are back punting and see a big lineman charging down on you, what are you to do?

You are to do nothing, for if you are KEEPING YOUR EYES ON THE BALL you won't see anything but the oval and will get off a good kick.

NEXT: Place Kicking.

BOWLING

The Red Wing Co. bowling team boosted its winning streak to nine games in a row by making a clean sweep of the three-game series with the American Legion quintet in a Recreation League match Tuesday night. J. Anderson and D. Gannon delivered themselves of 596 totals for the winners and Gannon rolled best for the Legion, tallying 588. Prior to Tuesday night's match the Red Wings and the Legion were tied for third place in the standing. Box score:

XENIAN RELEASED ON HABEAS CORPUS AFTER ARREST HERE

Arrested several days ago by county authorities on a warrant telegraphed from Hoxie, Ark., where he is wanted on a charge of selling property under false pretenses, Albert J. Parker, proprietor of the American Restaurant on W. Main St., obtained his release from the county jail Tuesday on a writ of habeas corpus granted by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Application for the writ was filed by Parker through Attorney Marcus McCallister, and he furnished $300 bond for appearance in Common Pleas Court at 9 a. m. Tuesday, November 28, for a final hearing.

Attorney McCallister announced that his client intends to fight extradition to Arkansas.

The affidavit filed against him at Hoxie is said to be an outgrowth of a transaction whereby Parker sold his restaurant business in that city and came to Xenia. Upon his arrival here he purchased the American Restaurant on W. Main St.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—A flood of selling orders for the industrial stocks and utilities poured in over the market at the first top of the opening going today.

United States Steel, Westinghouse, Standard Oil of New Jersey, General Electric and other market blue-chips fell through to new low levels for the year, with losses extending from 2 to 5 points in heavy trading in the first half-hour. A score of the best-known steel, copper, oil, electrical manufacturing, theatrical and specialty stocks were pressed for sale at the lowest prices in a year or more.

A decrease of 2 per cent in steel mills operations, a decline of 17,600 freight car loadings for the week and further cuts in crude and refined oil prices were the principal factors affecting prices in this period. Sweeping away of margin protection in speculative accounts and opening up of stop-loss orders accentuated the downward price move.

The Earl of Winston's body is found in the room of Robin Smith, young poet, at a house party at Alston Manor. Robin has attended so he may see Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love. In a fit of anger the poet locks his door and jumps out of the window, returning to his attic room. The next day he is arrested and the various members of the party testify at the coroner's inquest. Bruce Armstrong, big game hunter, is on the stand. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 19

"You seem to have pretty accurate information. Unfortunately, I can't recall my exact words, nor Mr. Smith's agreement with me. However, I should expect any intelligent man to agree to the obvious unreasonableness of the existing state of affairs."

"You condone murder?" interrupts the coroner.

"Not at all! I neither defend nor criticize the state of affairs. I only point it out."

"But it is possible that a young and impetuous person hearing your views might be fired to act on their implication."

"I think it is extremely unlikely."

The explorer's clear blue eyes stare out from under his bushy eyebrows at the coroner, and from him to the twelve men of the jury. "In fact I don't believe it is possible that my detached and wholly intellectual remarks aroused more than an equally detached and purely intellectual acquiescence from anyone present."

"That is for the gentlemen of the jury to consider," returns the coroner suavely. "Now will you tell us whether you noticed any unusual event which led you before the discovery of the body to think that something might be wrong?"

"I observed one thing which may or may not be significant, but which everyone else has failed for some reason to mention. I refer to the fact that when Lord Winston and Prince Pozolevsky were introduced, the prince declined to shake the hand Lord Winston extended in greeting."

Robin raises his head at this turn of affairs. It is a relief to hear another name mentioned in a doubtful manner, although he wishes the prince no harm. He strains his ears to catch every word.

The jury, no less than Robin, showed a reawakened interest in the evidence. There is a new liveliness, a new eagerness in their faces. Until then it had seemed a foregone conclusion that the poet was guilty. But here, in the words of the explorer, they scent what might be an unexpected twist to the case.

"You interpret that as possibly indicating unpleasant relations between these two men?"

"I most certainly do."

"Yet no one else so interpreted it. And it has been testified that Prince Pozolevsky had no acquaintance with Lord Winston prior to that meeting."

"I should want to verify that fact."

The coroner is seen to frown with annoyance. He had not anticipated this turn of events. He eyes the tall, broad-shouldered witness with perplexity.

"You base your doubt of the prince entirely on this one act, which may be a perfectly natural one?"

"I do not!"

The gentlemen of the jury start. The representatives of the press lean forward.

"What else occurred which you consider of consequence?"

"I consider it worth noting that when Lady Gwendolen was introduced, and inquiring as to the whereabouts of her brother, Prince Pozolevsky muttered under his breath: 'The devil take him!'"

"He said that?" The coroner is obviously astonished.

"He said 'Tchort pobert eva', which is the Russian equivalent."

Prince Pozolevsky has risen from his seat, and is gesticulating frantically.

"It had nothing to do with it! Nothing!" he shouts.

The explorer shrugs his shoulders.

For the first time that morning the faces of the twelve men become really expressive of some emotion other than curiosity. Some seem excited, some incredulous, all are now interested as they had not been before in the actual proceedings of the case in the mystery of the murder, dissociated from the personality of those concerned.

Robin turns his head and stares

"Tell in your own way how your door came to be locked with a dead man inside."

at the Prince, whose face is intensely pale, and whose eyes burn with an unnatural brilliance. He feels that the foreigner is in the grip of a violent emotion, and silently prays that he may in some way be cleared. Yet at the same time he has a fellow feeling with the foreigner almost as if he were his brother in danger. It makes him less alone. He knows now that it was the aloneness which was so unbearable.

The coroner raps sternly on his desk for order. An intense and portentous silence ensues.

After an instant the coroner resumes his questions.

"You noticed other peculiar things?"

"I have told you all..." Again that singular smile.

At which the coroner nods and dismisses the explorer, who returns to his chair with a curious inward look in those clear blue eyes, a look of great concentration.

Robin starts as the unfamiliar name is called. He looks about wonderingly, and sees

The next day he is arrested and the various members of the party testify at the coroner's inquest. Bruce Armstrong, big game hunter, is on the stand.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 19

"You seem to have pretty accurate information. Unfortunately, I can't recall my exact words, nor Mr. Smith's agreement with me. However, I should expect any intelligent man to agree to the obvious unreasonableness of the existing state of affairs."

"You condone murder?" interrupts the coroner.

"Not at all! I neither defend nor criticize the state of affairs. I only point it out."

"But it is possible that a young and impetuous person hearing your views might be fired to act on their implication."

"I think it is extremely unlikely. The explorer's clear blue eyes stare out from under his bushy eyebrows at the coroner, and from him to the twelve men of the jury. 'In fact I don't believe it is possible that my detached and wholly intellectual remarks aroused more than an equally detached and purely intellectual acquiescence from any one present.'"

"That is for the gentlemen of the jury to consider," returns the coroner suavely. "Now will you tell us whether you noticed any unusual event which led you before the discovery of the body to think that something might be wrong?"

"I observed one thing which may or may not be significant, but which everyone else has failed for some reason to mention. I refer to the fact that when Lord Winston and Prince Pozolevsky were introduced, the prince declined to shake the hand Lord Winston extended in greeting."

Robin raises his head at this new turn of affairs. It is a relief to hear another name mentioned in a doubtful manner, although he wishes the prince no harm. He strains his ears to catch every word.

The jury, no less than Robin, showed a reawakened interest in the evidence. There is a new liveliness, a new eagerness in their faces. Until then it had seemed a foregone conclusion that the poet was guilty. But here, in the words of the explorer, they scent what might be an unexpected twist to the case.

"You interpret that as possibly indicating unpleasant relations between these two men?"

"I most certainly do."

"Yet no one else so interpreted it. And it has been testified that Prince Pozolevsky had no acquaintance with Lord Winston prior to that meeting."

"I am, your honor."

"About two days ago you made an interesting discovery. Tell the gentlemen of the jury about it."

"It was the morning after the poor young lord was murdered, your honor, and I was cleaning up the garden as usual with me on Saturdays, upset though I was by the happening at the house. And as I was clearing away a paper here maybe, and a cigarette stump there, I saw something shining among the bushes. The thickest bushes grow in that part of the garden, so I had to crawl some way to get my hand on the shining thing. And when I got to where it was I saw that there was two things close together. They weren't lying on the ground, but caught in the thick foliage. They were so deep in I thought to myself at the time: 'These things must have been thrown a good way and pretty hard to get so firm and deep. And after I'd thought that I pulled the things out. They were silver, I thought; silver and glistening jewels I took them right in to my mistress—being an honest man who is careful of his reputation—I took them right to my mistress, and she says—"

"What did she say?" Every ear is straining to hear.

"She says," the witness continues after turning the matter around in his mind for the best way to put it, "she says: 'Why, if these aren't Lord Winston's watch and cigarette-case! Where in the world did you find them, Miller?'"

"And I says, says I: 'I found them in the thick bushes by the entrance walk, Your Ladyship.' 'How could they have come there?' she says, more surprised. 'Someone threw them there. That's how they come, says I.'"

"Thrown in. From the walk to the road, you'd say."

"They could have been, but I'd say from a height, sir, if you want my opinion."

"But they could have been thrown by one in flight down the walk?"

"Yes, sir."

"That will do, Miller." With a friendly nod the coroner dismisses the witness.

Robin has little difficulty in seeing the trend of that evidence. Who but he should be fleeing down the walk? It is all so damnable, so inevitable. First the locked door (God knows why he had locked it), now the finding of these belongings of the murdered man. He's surely being pursued by a malicious fate. It is futile even to hope; yet a spark of hope had quickened his pulse when the explorer was giving his testimony, only to be extinguished by this gardener.

"Robin Smith!" The stentorian tones of the coroner calling his name awake Robin from his reverie with a start. He springs nervously to his feet, and walks mechanically to the foreground, trying with all his might to appear at ease and self-contained.

"Robin Smith," the coroner repeats the name more slowly, as if wishing to impress every syllable on his audience. "You have heard the evidence. You have heard how the dead man was discovered in your room with the door locked. How his valuable watch and cigarette-case were found near the path where you passed to the main road in your midnight flight to the city. Now that the men of the jury may judge wisely, tell in your own way and your own words how your door came to be locked with a dead man inside, and how you came to leave in so curious and sudden a fashion. By curious, I refer to the fact that you left by the window instead of by one of the doors, and by sudden I mean without taking leave of your hostess, nor even telling her it was your intention to depart, but letting her think you had gone to your room to get your poems to read."

The Theater

It is reported authoritatively in the public prints, specifically the Photoplay Magazine, that the chances are your favorite movie star of ten years ago, in case you're curious, is a Hollywood extra now.

The chances are also that he, or she, regrets the lavish spending of years gone by and is thankful now to serve as part of the mob scene or to take a "bit"—to act as an unimportant servant or pose for a character flash.

Four of the most serial stars of other years were Grace Cunard,

Helen Holmes, Carol Holloway and Helen Gibson. Now they are all doing "bits." Francis Ford, once starred with the then eminent Grace Cunard, also does small parts.

Florence Turner, famous before the names of Pickford and Talmadge meant anything in the movies, was an extra in a recent spectacle hit. Maurice Costello, most popular matinee idol of his day, occasionally shows his face in minor roles. Paul Panzer, villain of the Pearl White thrillers, makes a living the same way.

Bobby Dunn, opposite whom Gloria Swanson used to play leads, is an intermittent player of small parts.

A story is being told about Francis X. Bushman, who applied to a young casting director for a certain role.

"What's your name?", asked the casting director.

"Francis X. Bushman," said the former star.

"Ever been in pictures before?", the director asked.

Bushman realized the question was serious. "Pardon me," he said, "I'm really Holbrook Blinn, and I've been dead two years."

Six years ago Ernest Lubitsch directed a brilliant, stinging picture called "The Marriage Circle," one of the first movies to treat wedlock in the Continental manner, with a wink instead of a tear. Since then strange things have happened to the cast. A year later Florence Vidor divorced King Vidor. Marie Prevost, who was already a divorcee, has married and divorced Kenneth Harlan. Monte Blue already had been divorced. Adolphe Menjou and his first wife were divorced in 1927 and in 1924 Creighton Hale's wife sued him. The same year Harry Myers and his first wife were parted by the court.

great objective of the attack on the protective tariff principle. In the past the forces fighting the protective tariff principle were the free traders who, whittling or uncutting, were playing into the hands of foreign producers.

"Today these forces have been augmented by a small group of American manufacturers who are so greedy that they are trying to increase their riches at the expense of American prosperity and to the detriment of American producers, workmen, farmers and merchants, affecting the pocketbooks and the opportunities for success of every man, woman and child in this country. It is an attempt to transfer prosperity from America to Europe."

"The tariff act of 1930 is just now getting into operation. The act may not be perfect. No tariff law was ever perfect. Take my word for it, most of the abuse leveled at this law is pure propaganda, and is not justified by the facts."

"Some of the new rates may be too high. I voted against a number of them which I thought were too high. Some rates are no doubt too low. Everybody knows there are inequalities in all tariff laws and especially is that so where the Congress itself fixes the rates. The machinery is set up in the flexible provisions for adjusting promptly such rates as are too high or too low."

"So long as I remain your senator, I propose to stand for America first. I propose to help guard our prosperity. I propose to help guard our liberty."

Congressman Charles Brand, Urbana, Republican candidate in the election from the seventh district, also spoke from the same platform preceding McCulloch's address, also touching on the subject of the tariff and the wet and dry question.

Senator McCulloch was introduced by former State Senator L. T. Marshall, chairman of the county Republican Executive Committee.

RUSSIA NOT SO BAD DECLARES SPEAKER ON FARMERS' NIGHT

Rotarians, Kiwanians and their guests, farmers of Greene County, were enlightened on conditions in Russia when John J. Lentz, Columbus, former congressman, spoke at "Farmers' Night" at the Elks' Club Tuesday evening. Covers were placed for 160 guests at the banquet, which was served by Jacob Kany.

Mr. Lentz, who is president of the American Insurance Union, recently visited Russia and his talk concerned what he saw and found there. He said the Soviet government has been greatly misrepresented and that Russians are making the same efforts our forefathers made to establish a rule of the people. He also described in detail the immense farms of the Russian people.

Preceding the talk the Kiwanis quartet, composed of Karl R. Babb, William Hugh Miller, John Wood and J. E. Balmer, sang several numbers. Songs of the two clubs were also sung by the guests.

RETIRED FARMER IS CALLED BY DEATH

Christopher K. Ellis, 73, retired farmer, died at his home on the Mussey Pike near Bowersville, Tuesday afternoon at 12:45 o'clock. He suffered a paralytic stroke thirteen years ago and had never fully regained his health. Death was due to a third stroke suffered early Tuesday morning.

Mr. Ellis was born in Greene County, near Port William, December 24, 1856, the son of Silas and Mary Ellis. His early life was spent in Clinton County, and he came to Greene County when twenty-two years of age. The remainder of his life was spent in the vicinity where he died. He was a member of Jamestown Lodge, No. 52, F. and A. M.

His marriage to Miss Dora Adams took place February 5, 1880 and she survived with two sons: Orville J. and Charles S., both near Bowersville. A grand son, Lawrence Victor Ellis, a sister, Mrs. Mason Wolford, Lumberton and two brothers, Anderson Ellis, Centerville and Johnson Ellis, Clyde, Kans., also survive. Funeral arrangements have not been completed and will be announced later.

BELLBROOK

Frederick Marshall, of Dayton, spent a few days of the past week with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Cramer.

Mrs. Cora Robinson, of Indianapolis, arrived last week to spend the winter with her brothers, Geo. and Oliver Penewill.

The village street committee has treated the streets to a new coat of gravel.

Official notice is being given the young people of the vicinity that the usual practice of abusing and destroying property on Halloween will not be tolerated this year. The Marshall has been supplied with a number of deputies by order of the council, and all persons found violating the law will be promptly arrested.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church met at the home of Mrs. Cora Davis Wednesday afternoon. A good social time was enjoyed by all in attendance. Those present were Mrs. Gover, Mrs. William Huston, Mrs. Hattie Thorne, Mrs. Walter Hemming, Mrs. Minnie Wetzel, Mrs. Oral Hess, Mrs. Stella Mulhup, Mrs. Sam Miller and Mrs. Katherine Ledbetter.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR HEARD HERE TUESDAY

Claims of Republican economy in the state administration were the target of Democrat grators at a rally at the Opera House Tuesday night at which state Democratic candidates were presented.

George White, Marietta, candidate for governor; William G. Pickrel, Dayton, candidate for lieutenant governor; John Henry Newman, Columbus, candidate for secretary of state; M. Ray Allison, Columbus, candidate for attorney general; John L. Zimmerman, Jr., Springfield, candidate for congress from the seventh district and Tom Dye, Urbana, member of the state Democratic committee and formerly its chairman, took turns at flaying the Cooper administration.

It was the first appearance of the state candidates here and the party arrived late, coming from a meeting at Wilmington and continuing from here to another meeting at Springfield. Alleging an "unholy alliance" between Governor Myers, Y. Cooper and the discredited Republican political machine in Hamilton County which has been ousted from Cincinnati by independent Republicans, the speakers attacked Cooper's connection with Ed Schorr, state commerce director and Hamilton County party leader.

"For all practical purposes, Commerce Director Ed Schorr is the real governor of Ohio," said White. "If Cincinnati won't tolerate the Schneller-Schorr gang in its city hall, certainly the voters of Ohio no longer will tolerate its leaders in control of the state house." He pointed out that Schorr is being paid $6,500 a year as commerce director but still finds time to direct the Cooper campaign as chairman of the state central committee and to also act as chairman of the Hamilton County campaign.

"Myers Cooper will lose his home county by 25,000 votes," said William G. Pickrel, declaring that independent Republicans in Hamilton County are asking for his defeat. He discounted Cooper's claims of economy by pointing out that the cost of the state government had increased $4,700,000 in the first year of the Cooper administration over the last year of the Donahay regime, the majority of which was represented in increases in the operation of various departments. These, he said, included $166,367 a year in Commerce Director Schorr's department; $65,870 a year in the office of Finance Director Harry Silver; $38,994 a year in the state highway director's office, $107,250 a year in the state agriculture department and $24,996 in the welfare department. Both Pickrel and White attacked Cooper's policy in abandoning the itemized budget plan and adopting a lump appropriation plan and the present plan of converting $1,300,000 from the soldiers' bonus fund to the road fund.

H. A. Higgins, Democratic committee chairman, opened the meeting and turned it over to Tom Dye, who spoke on national issues. Greene County Democratic candidates on the stage were introduced by Mr. Dye. They were: George Thorne, for representative; William Jacobs, for coroner; Harry Fisher, for sheriff; George Smith, for prosecutor; David Bradford, for county commissioner; R. E. Dunkle for recorder and W. T. Naragon for auditor. Mr. Thorne spoke briefly.

APPEAL OF GILBERT COOPER IS ARGUED

Appeal of Gilbert Cooper, Cedarville laborer, serving a term of fourteen to twenty years in Ohio penitentiary for manslaughter in connection with the shooting of Caleb Hitchcock in November, 1928 was argued by Attorney F. L. Johnson, defense counsel, before the Greene County Court of Appeals which convened in Common Pleas Court Wednesday morning.

Cooper was originally convicted of first degree murder for the slaying of Hitchcock following a quarrel over animal traps, but the state supreme court reversed the lower courts and remanded the case for re-trial. The manslaughter conviction was returned by a jury at the second trial.

MIDDLETOWN BANK CASHIER ARRESTED

HAMILTON, O., Oct. 22.—Edwin P. McCue, 35, cashier of the Commercial Bank at Middletown, was at liberty under $10,000 bond today following his arrest on a charge of embezzlement and misapplication of the bank's funds. He was arrested yesterday on a warrant which was signed by J. C. Van Pelt, state bank examiner.

B. F. Primmer, Butler county prosecutor, said that the alleged defalcations amounted to nearly $40,000.

The members of the Library Association met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. N. Wolford. An interesting talk was given by Mrs. Rudolf Bowda of Antioch College, on the topic, "Travel Recollections from an Austrian Background." An important feature at this meeting was the question whether or not we would hold our annual Halloween Carnival. Much to the pleasure of the whole community it was decided to have the carnival. The place will probably be Dayton Street and the date is Oct. 31st. As usual prizes will be awarded. Everyone is asked to join in the Halloween sport and come out masked ready for the grand march. The receipts will be used toward the expenses of our public library.

The young ladies of St. Paul's Church will hold a card party Wednesday evening in the church parlors. The evening will be spent playing bridge, five hundred and euchre. Games will begin at 8:30.

Mrs. Ira Barr gave a bridge party Thursday evening in honor of Miss Margaret Meredith of Chicago, who is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Meredith, east of town.

Mrs. A. C. Swinnerton who has been in Oneida, New York, for the past three weeks returned home Thursday accompanied by her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ruby.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Erbaugh left Monday for a motor trip through Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Reel and little daughter of Cincinnati spent the week end with Mrs. Reel's parents Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Stewart.

Miss Clara Zell who has been in the McClellan Hospital in Xenia for the past two weeks has returned home and is back at her work in the Miami Deposit Bank.

Mr. Lehr Fess and family of Toledo spent the week end with his father, Senator S. D. Fess.

Mrs. W. C. Lacey is spending the week with Mr. Lacey on one of his business trips through the state. They left for Youngstown, Monday. After a few days there they will go to Toledo to attend the teachers' convention.

Mrs. Keller Bell and daughter of Urbana were the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Garlough Friday.

"Doctor recommended it," says Miller, of Camden, N. J.

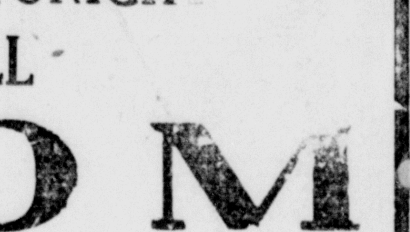

Camden, N. J.—"More than fourteen years ago my doctor recommended Pluto Water to me as a preventive of constipation," says Louis H. Miller, local resident.

"I knew it, of course, as a prompt relief measure, but this was a new use. Ever since that time, my whole family has used it, and we would not be without it for a minute. The treatment is simple—a small dose, in plain hot or cold water, each morning upon arising. It keeps the system always up to par, and helps ward off many serious complaints."

Pluto Mineral Water is Nature's own remedy. It acts promptly (thirty minutes to two hours) and cannot gripe or injure delicate tissues. Physicians recommend it because they know it is non-habit-forming. Pluto Water, bottled at French Lick Springs, Ind., is on sale at drug stores everywhere, and at fountains.

TRUCK HORSE POWER

SPEED of a keen, alert, agile, sinewy race horse—power of a strong, steady, muscular, dependable truck horse... that's typical of the performance of Koolmotor, the thoroughbred of gasolenes.

Koolmotor starts in a flash; picks up like lightning; delivers a smooth, steady flow of power every mile you drive, and—without a knock.

And don't forget—Koolmotor is free from harmful gum. This protects you against loss of power, compression and mileage caused by sticky valves.

You never have to drive far to a Cities Service station or dealer. There are more than 1200 throughout Ohio.

"Doctor recommended it," says Miller, of Camden, N. J.

Camden, N. J.—

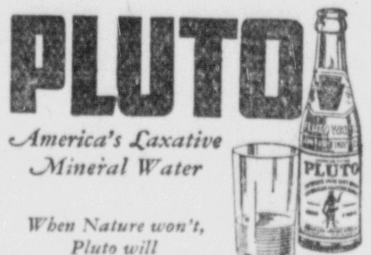

"More than fourteen years ago my doctor recommended Pluto

Water to me as a preventive of constipation," says Louis H. Miller, local resident.

"I know it, of course, as a prompt relief measure, but this was new use. Ever since that time, my whole family has used it, and we would not be without it for a minute. The treatment is simple—a small dose, in plain hot or cold water, each morning upon arising. It keeps the system always up to par, and helps ward off many serious complaints."

Pluto Mineral Water is Nature's own remedy. It acts promptly (thirty minutes to two hours) and cannot gripe or injure delicate tissues. Physicians recommend it because they know it is non-habit-forming. Pluto Water, bottled at French Lick Springs, Ind., is on sale at drug stores everywhere, and at fountains.

"Only ten minutes to bathe and dress!"

"Try Kirk's—it lathers like magic even in our hard water"

On sleepy mornings when you're rushed for time you can have your bath over in a jiffy—for this magic soap lathers double quick—even in hardest or coldest water. And your skin feels so clean—satin smooth—nourished by the gentle coconut oil. Kirk's Cocoa Castile is made by a secret process from 100% pure coconut oil. Marvelous for shampoo. Actually removes dangerous germs. Try it right away—only 10c for the big white oversize cake. Look for the red arrows on the wrapper.

RACE HORSE SPEED

TRUCK HORSE POWER

SPEED of a keen, alert, agile, sinewy Race horse—power of a strong, steady, muscular, dependable truck horse... that's typical of the performance of Koolmotor, the thoroughbred of gasolenes.

Koolmotor starts in a flash; picks up like lightning; delivers a smooth, steady flow of power every mile you drive, and—without a knock.

And don't forget—Koolmotor is free from harmful gum. This protects you against loss of power, compression and mileage caused by sticky valves.

You never have to drive far to a Cities Service station or dealer. There are more than 1200 throughout Ohio.
